Boathouse construction continues as spring completion date nears

Costing more than $500,000, the new MIT boathouse should be completed by early spring, according to Mr. R. W. Dixon, Head of the Physical Plant Department.

Work on the Harold Whitworth Pierce Boathouse has been continuous since this spring. Thus far, the foundation for the boathouse, lockers, and rowing tank have been completed; piles have been driven for the dock, which will be supported by poly-plastic floats; and work on the forms for the walls has been initiated.

The completed boathouse will contain rooms for 48 shells and 10 skiffs, 2 locker rooms for both the home and visiting teams, and an observation deck and lounge for spectators.

The boathouse should greatly encourage rowing at MIT, according to Dr. James R. Killian, Jr., Chairman of the Corporation. "This move gives us 350 students who row now in our intercollege league and 100 more in the heavyweight crews," Dr. Killian explained.

The construction of the boathouse was made possible by a $300,000 grant from the Harold Whitworth Pierce Charitable Trust of Boston. The Trust was established under the will of the late Boston-area financier, Harold W. Pierce of Milton, Mass., who died in 1956. An avid sportsman, Mr. Pierce was a former president of the United States Golf Association.

Boston Sch. Committee candidate speaks here

John Gaquin, candidate for the Boston School Committee endorsed by Citizens for the Boston Schools, will address the Committee Center. Citizens for the Boston Schools is an organization that aims to improve the Boston Public Schools, stimulate public cooperation, and elect a full committee of excellence.

Mr. Gaquin is an active school committee member and has been involved in the planning of a new school. His ideas include expanding the core curriculum, increasing the number of teachers, and reducing the size of classes. He believes that these changes will improve the educational opportunities for all students.

Cross country team loses to Wesleyan, beats Coast Guard

The MIT varsity cross country team lost its first meet against Coast Guard and Wesleyan. Running over the 3.9 mile Coast Guard course in perfect weather, the Yeomen amassed 42 points to 19 for Wesleyan and Coast Guard's 59. TheYeomen's 42 points consisted of second, seventh, eighth, twelfth, and thirteenth places.

First place went to Wesleyan's Anubose Burtford, with a time of 30 minutes, 30.5 seconds. Leading the Tech charge with his consistently good running was Summer Brown, '66, with a time of 33 minutes, 30.5 seconds, good for second place. Scoring behind him were captains Bob Weissen, '66, Dan Hoben, '65, Hodge Blandish, '71, and Henry Lube, '71.

The Tech runners hope to regain their winning ways next Saturday in a dual meet with New Hampshire at Franklin Pierce. The freshmen run at 1:30, while the varsity will start at 3:00.
