Jazz at mit...

A tasteful blending of two arts

By Rob Taylor

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1965

The quartet performed colorfully for nearly two hours, combating the raving effects of the wind and the low temperature with a seasoned precision. Their more than moderate success, a fact to which the audience of over 1200 readily attests. The audience, I might add, remained quite unaffected by the cold, displaying cheers and handclapping, finger-popping, and foot-stomping to Roy McCurdy's drum beat.

The music was all Cormanahl, displaying his philosophy that jazz as a medium should be perpetuated, molding both old and new elements into a package of musical pleasure. His selection of tunes provided this point, ranging from the satirical and satirical of Tom Lehrer. A collection of fourteen original songs by Mr. Lehrer is currently an in

New Tom Lehrer album on sale: "That Was The Year That Was"

By Rob Taylor

"That Was The Year That Was" (Mr. Lehrer is currently an in-

By sheer physical attractiveness.

Ensemble: $2.25

The most impressive musician of the evening was Thelonious Monk, whose plunge from public spotlight in early days of high-pitched irrelev-

"The Week That Was," a show which was described as the newest member of the New Math, Dr. Wernher von Braun, and, lastly the Ecumene-

Back Bay Theatre
(Formerly Donnelly Memorial)

Sonny James

Connie Smith

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1965

CONCERTS

LSC Presents

Friday—Oct. 22

Seance on a Wet Afternoon

26-100

6-100

50c

SUNDAY, Oct. 23

50c

23-100

50c

PETER ROBERTS

Luce

By DICK GREGORY, JAN & EVELYN BOB-GIBSON

8-100

25-100

6-100

Anne, and, lastly the Ecumene-

MIT HUMANITIES SERIES 1965-66

presented by

THE SIXTEEN BEETHOVEN QUARTETS

Performed by the Fine Art Quartet

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1965

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1965

SUNDAY, JANUARY 9, 1966

SUNDAY, JANUARY 9, 1966

SUNDAY, MARCH 6, 1966

All concerts start at 8:30 p.m., Kresge Auditorium

Tickets $4.50-3.50-2.50 on sale at KRESGE BOX OFFICE, MIT, Cambridge, or call UN 4-3900, Ext. 2910.

Make checks payable to MIT Humanities Series.