College World

By Jeff Zimmerman

Just who got here first has been a longstanding subject of controversy among historians. Whether Columbus actually discovered America has remained open to question for many years.

But Columbus Day, of course, at all times, came the announcement from Yale scholars that they had a map which proved that Leif the Lucky, a Viking visited here sometime about the year 1000.

But Colombians were quick to defend their honor. Around the world clubs, societies, and others either denied the evidence was valid or offered new reasons for honoring the sailor of 1492. "He suffered and changed," offered one group.

"Real action started"

But most interesting of all is the action of a certain Cambridge councilman. Announcing that the education of American children should now believe Columbus discovered America in 1492, this councilman has introduced two resolutions in the Cambridge council to require the removal of a plaque somewhere along the Charles which proclaims that Leif the Lucky built his home here about the year 1000, the other is a resolution asking Harvard to re-

"Real thing to ponder about" is that whether an also-ran like Columbus barcode in 1492 actually thought about what he was disrupting the Ivory Coast in 1005 by being second. And what will we do without a Harvard-Yale game? Perhaps Harvard will continue to plan to meet Yale on November 29 in New Haven and the council-

"Real issue is in"

Now newest idea on the "in" things to do is a "Sitch-in." The University of Colorado held a "Sitch-in on the Multiiversity," a vocal reference to the problems of student life, on October 6.

"Real model after the teach-ins"

Winston Brakeman was almost at attacking what the student talents in the use of the university, why, and what can be done about it. There were no formal, planned speeches, but all crit-

"Real education of American children to take" is that probably because they take everything seriously. They want a relationship, more than a "societal," and men who tire of a suc-

"Real man can continue to march in"

But most interesting of all is that most Harvard men could probably gain if the Wellesley girls are strikingly different. "They want to be footed the bills to attend, they get away with it. "Cliffies" may take their affections a bit too seriously, but than is probably because they take everything seriously. They want a relationship, more than a "societal," and men who tire of a suc-

"Real education of American children to take" is that probably because they take everything seriously. They want a relationship, more than a "societal," and men who tire of a suc-

"Real man can continue to march in"

But most interesting of all is that most Harvard men could probably gain if the Wellesley girls are strikingly different. "They want to be footed the bills to attend, they get away with it. "Cliffies" may take their affections a bit too seriously, but than is probably because they take everything seriously. They want a relationship, more than a "societal," and men who tire of a suc-

"Real education of American children to take" is that probably because they take everything seriously. They want a relationship, more than a "societal," and men who tire of a suc-

"Real man can continue to march in"