Fall season evaluation

By Gerry Banner

The frosh sailing team made a fall showing with a first place in the Greater Boston College Championship and a second place in the Charles River Regatta. The fall season is the team's only competition, and it is the team's first year in intercollegiate competition. The team has three more meets this fall and the freshmen will have to do well.

Another team with a fine showing was the varsity sailing team, which won the New England Championship, the New England Invitational, the Mann Lab Trophy for the men's team, and the Radcliffe Women's International Trophy for the women's team. The team also won the Radcliffe International Trophy and the Radcliffe Women's International Trophy.

The team's showing was particularly impressive given the lack of experience on the team. The team lost its two returning varsity sailors, and the freshmen had to step up and fill the void. The team's success was due to the hard work and dedication of the freshmen and the experienced sailors.

The team's success can be attributed to the hard work and dedication of the freshmen and the experienced sailors. The team's showing was particularly impressive given the lack of experience on the team. The team lost its two returning varsity sailors, and the freshmen had to step up and fill the void. The team's success was due to the hard work and dedication of the freshmen and the experienced sailors.

The team's success can be attributed to the hard work and dedication of the freshmen and the experienced sailors. The team's showing was particularly impressive given the lack of experience on the team. The team lost its two returning varsity sailors, and the freshmen had to step up and fill the void. The team's success was due to the hard work and dedication of the freshmen and the experienced sailors.