Mystery clouds missing student
By Mark Bobbin
Fred Grosfeld ‘38, a Course XVIII major from Ridgefield, Conn., was reported missing on the night of December 19 for over two weeks and is the object of a widespread search throughout the Boston area.
He was last seen about 11 pm. Tuesday, November 30, after a bridge game with some of his friends elsewhere in downtown Boston. He lived the next day and has not been seen since. A later check of his room showed that no luggage or personal effects were missing.
Grosfeld was described as a quiet, steady, and industrious student. His outstanding interests were limited to the student chapter of the St. John's Society, and tutoring students from Roxbury. He had no trouble in school, and there is no known reason for his disappearance.
Isreal Grosfeld, Fred’s father, fears that his son may have encountered some difficulty with his academic success, and has come to Cambridge to find his son for himself.
Authorities have requested that anyone who might have seen Fred since November 30, 1:00 pm at the President of the Student Council. A reward of $200 has been offered for any information regarding Grosfeld’s whereabouts, and all such information will be held in confidence.
Grosfeld is described as 5 ft. 7, about 140 pounds with medium build, and glasses. He wears glasses with dark frames.

Undergraduates advised not to worry about draft
By Dan Adams
There’s really no need to worry about the draft, if it seems they’re not taking MIT undergraduates.
So said Mrs. Lutz, revered expert on the military strategy of the MIT student. Her appointment to the Office of the Dean of Students was announced by General Lewis B. Hershey, Director of Selective Service, at the recent Selective Service headquarters in Washington, and if anyone knows what SS is doing it’s he.
Several weeks ago Mrs. Lutz got a draft notice for the “exceptional” reason of being over 34 years of age. The General said that all scientists are being considered for possible exemption, and by now is no longer required to report the quarter of the class is in. So if they are classifying a college student by the kind of education he is getting.
The final decision as to who gets a draft notice is left to the local board, each board has its list of “what constitutes military and drafty.” In areas where enlistment is high and the draft must be high, recently, though, enlistment has been high, so the draft is dropping.
If feels that a MIT student gets the “ready and waiting” designation of 1-A (and if he does not), he has no right to be drafted until he has contact Mrs. Lutz within 10 days. If he feels he has no right to be drafted, he should call her, for after 10 days an appeal cannot be made.

Deacons’ president speaks at Student Center
By D. B. Jodrey, Jr.
Charles Sims, president of the Deacons, the Students for a Democratic Society, and the Students for a Democratic Action, was re-elected yesterday at the Student Center Wednesday evening to another term. The total student body is about 900 and his campaign was without contest.

The Deacons are an acronym of civil rights organization with about 30 chapters throughout the South. Sims is a former Army weapons instructor. His speech here was spearheaded by the Caucus, the Committee on the Student, the Socialist Club, and the students for a Democratic Society.
The Deacons were organized early this year as the result of a meeting administrated to two white civil rights workers.
The Deacons have been active in the Boston area in the past, and are currently involved in the National Student for a Democratic Action. They are currently involved in a number of students who have been active in the local projectId.

Psychiatrists declare that sex not colleges’ concern
By John Corwin
A group of 20 psychiatrists declared Saturday that the private sexual behavior of students need not become the direct concern of college authorities.
The statement was made in a report compiled by the Committee on the Sexual Behavior in the College, a committee of the Group for the Advancement of Psychiatry.

Dr. Benson R. Snyder, Psychiatric Director of the Boston City Hospital at Wellesley was a member of the committee publishing the report. He commented that the report is meant to be a guide to college authorities in the handling of cases involving sexual behavior. He said that the report is read by administration, students and faculty.

The GAP, formed in 1966, meets twice annually and thus written many small books and papers on the subject of sexual behavior. Dr. Snyder cited the psychological aspects of sexual behavior, law, segregation, and the public interest as the major topics.

The Committee, one of 12 in GAP, began work on the report two years ago. The write-up deals with related problems rising on the college campus. The report is not approved by any critics but rather by a desire to promote the general understanding of the topic.

“We felt that some understand,” Dr. Snyder said, “that sexual behavior in the sexual development of late adolescence due to human beings in the new world is a very natural thing, and relating them to their environment and student desires,” Dr. Snyder said.

He emphasized that the report is intended to provide a framework of guidance to students and students, for the issue of their education and student desires. A reward has been offered for any information regarding Grosfeld’s whereabouts, and all such information will be held in confidence.

Convocation at 11 am in Kresge
The annual Christmas Convocation will be held this morning in Kresge Auditorium. The convocation will be opened by Dean Frederick G. Fetter, Jr., the principal speaker. At the conclusion of the convocation, new refections will be served in the basement of Kresge.

As usual classes will be sus-

Recently, The New York Times quoted Thomas W. Harlington, Jr., head of the MIT career counseling office, as saying that he could “understand a philosophy department giving a mandate to the President to do something to the campus.” Mr. Harlington replied with a letter to the Times explaining that the statement was crudely removed from context, and that he didn’t mean anything at all.

Graduate students lead a slighter than normal Christmas celebration, for some local bosses don’t recognize the importance of campus to hiring of a younger, fierier set of co-workers. He repeatedly denied that approval could be given. It is this possibility that is uppermost in the minds of the Deacons-they don’t approve the plan.

The Bogalusa Deacons were organized in 1968 in the Louisiana of the same name. The Deacons have been involved in a number of protests and demonstrations, and the Students for a Democratic Society is also involved.

We feel that some understand,” Dr. Snyder said, “that sexual behavior in the sexual development of late adolescence due to human beings in the new world is a very natural thing, and relating them to their environment and student desires,” Dr. Snyder said.

He emphasized that the report is intended to provide a framework of guidance to students and students, for the issue of their education and student desires. A reward has been offered for any information regarding Grosfeld’s whereabouts, and all such information will be held in confidence.

Convocation at 11 am in Kresge
The annual Christmas Convocation will be held this morning in Kresge Auditorium. The convocation will be opened by Dean Frederick G. Fetter, Jr., the principal speaker. At the conclusion of the convocation, new refections will be served in the basement of Kresge.

As usual classes will be sus-

Recently, The New York Times quoted Thomas W. Harlington, Jr., head of the MIT career counseling office, as saying that he could “understand a philosophy department giving a mandate to the President to do something to the campus.” Mr. Harlington replied with a letter to the Times explaining that the statement was crudely removed from context, and that he didn’t mean anything at all.

Graduate students lead a slighter than normal Christmas celebration, for some local bosses don’t recognize the importance of campus to hiring of a younger, fierier set of co-workers. He repeatedly denied that approval could be given. It is this possibility that is uppermost in the minds of the Deacons-they don’t approve the plan.

The Bogalusa Deacons were organized in 1968 in the Louisiana of the same name. The Deacons have been involved in a number of protests and demonstrations, and the Students for a Democratic Society is also involved.

We feel that some understand,” Dr. Snyder said, “that sexual behavior in the sexual development of late adolescence due to human beings in the new world is a very natural thing, and relating them to their environment and student desires,” Dr. Snyder said.

He emphasized that the report is intended to provide a framework of guidance to students and students, for the issue of their education and student desires. A reward has been offered for any information regarding Grosfeld’s whereabouts, and all such information will be held in confidence.

Convocation at 11 am in Kresge
The annual Christmas Convocation will be held this morning in Kresge Auditorium. The convocation will be opened by Dean Frederick G. Fetter, Jr., the principal speaker. At the conclusion of the convocation, new refections will be served in the basement of Kresge.

As usual classes will be sus-

Recently, The New York Times quoted Thomas W. Harlington, Jr., head of the MIT career counseling office, as saying that he could “understand a philosophy department giving a mandate to the President to do something to the campus.” Mr. Harlington replied with a letter to the Times explaining that the statement was crudely removed from context, and that he didn’t mean anything at all.

Graduate students lead a slighter than normal Christmas celebration, for some local bosses don’t recognize the importance of campus to hiring of a younger, fierier set of co-workers. He repeatedly denied that approval could be given. It is this possibility that is uppermost in the minds of the Deacons-they don’t approve the plan.

The Bogalusa Deacons were organized in 1968 in the Louisiana of the same name. The Deacons have been involved in a number of protests and demonstrations, and the Students for a Democratic Society is also involved.