President-elect Howard W. Johnson is "looking forward with great anticipation" to the beginning of his term of office July 1. He plans "to work closely with the faculty and student body in planning the line of courses most beneficial to MIT," he told a Tech reporter in a telephone interview from his temporary home in Cincinnati.

Dean of the Sloan School of Management until last Saturday, Professor Johnson had planned to assume the post of executive vice-president for corporate development with Federated Department Stores before he was asked to consider the presidency of the Instituty, just three days before the December 28 official announcement.

When asked how he plans to work with the Institute, Dean Johnson said he had already sold his New Hampshire summer home, and had made plans to move his famyly to Ohio.

The president offers no plans county to the United States. When asked if the MIT or Federated choices had been difficult, he replied; "MIT stands very high in the national scale of values, so I had no hesitation about taking the position." Professor Johnson said that he would divide the time until June 30 equally between the MIT and his Harvard position.

The MIT campus, first to be built in twenty years, will be designed by Professor

No real lead to the whereabouts of Fred Greenfeld, a math major, has been found since November 30. To the contrary, the Campus Patrol, the Campus Police or the FBI, has been for a spokesman for the MIT Campus Patrol.

An intensive "sweep" search of the campus and the area surrounding the freshman dorm pa-tered. The FBI has been consulted in the case because of the possibility that federal anti-kidnapping laws have been violated. Spokesmen for the federal agency have refused to comment on whether or not they are investigating the disappearance.

A search of the Charles River marshland by Lieutenant Oliviera of the Campus Patrol during the evening yielded the body of a young man. The corpse, which had some resemblance to Ronald Goodrich Brown, a 1960 Easton and 1966 Harvard graduate who had been missing since October 31.

The student, a freshman in the freshman dorm, had been missing since October 24 and 1964 Harvard graduate who
