for the year, but certainly not by the amazing 27% plurality and 17 vote lead which it pulled at MIT.

Four songs which were certainly among the top ten sellers of the year were well over one million sales but failed to crack the top twenty here were "Can't Help Myself," "Mrs. Brown, I Got You Babe," and "Woody Bully." The newer songs, such as the Sounds of Silence' and 'We Can Work It Out," were probably stronger than they would have been if the poll had been conducted six months hence. The collegiate drinking songs, such as 'Hang On Sloopy' and the 'Puffy Green Giant,' did better than they did nationally although not quite as well as might have been expected. The Beatles were far and away the top group, drawing 65 votes compared with 54 for the second place Rolling Stones.

WIMEX conducted a similar poll in which they asked their listeners to write in their favorite song. Their top ten was 'Yesterday,' 'Rubber Soul,' 'Help,' I Got You Babe,' 'Hang On Sloopy,' 'Mrs. Brown,' and 'This Diamond Ring.' A comparison of our list with this one gives an interesting comparison of high school and collegiate taste. The high school kids must be succeeded by the words in the 'Eve of Destruction,' which ranked 26th here and picked up more negative comments and votes than any other song.

The success of this poll seems to indicate that rock and roll is much bigger at MIT than many people would like to believe.

The Bible says: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." Romans 1:16.
