Co-captain Marj "Whitney" Whitehan '66 scores two points in his 137 pound match against Coast Guard's Jeff Hull. Whitehan, 3rd in last year's New England meet, scored a 4-2 victory over Hull in one of 6 Tech victories.

By Armin Van Buren

The MIT varsity handball team has gone 3-0-0 in their first three contests this season and will face off against Babson tomorrow in the annual "Beavers vs. Beavers" game.

The opening trip there was little doubt, but the outcome was not decided until the 11th set of the game with N.Y. Marist. Before the opposition could register their first point, MIT had a 13-3 lead. The visitors were hindered in their ability to get shots past the front line of junior Alex Wilson, put the game away with another 10-1 set. Tech's next opponent will be Babson, who are chosen as their opposition. Coach Jack Barry paired all of his starters with the exception of Wilson, but the 11-1 final was not in doubt as the game went to a decisive 11th set, 12-10.

Wilson goes for record

Wilson began the contest with 419 points to his credit this season, which has him just 27 away from the MIT single season record held by Dave Koch, who scored 446 points in the 1969-70 campaign. As the game became more and more one-sided in the record book, the only question of interest to the MIT fans was whether Big Alex would break Koch's mark.

With his trademark feeding feeding the back row, his 6'2" stature and his ability to get around the court, Koch led the team to a third place finish in the nation. In his final set against the University of Pennsylvania, Koch made 30 points, and was chosen as the game's Most Valuable Player.

The following afternoon, the Beavers were matched against Gordon, who had beaten them in the first set of the meet against the two teams. Tech trailed the scores. In the last few minutes of the match, the Beavers had their opportunity to overtake Tech. Koch faced the task of getting the ball in the back row. Koch's accuracy and speed allowed him to get the ball in the back row, and score the crucial point.

Koch was named the Most Valuable Player for his performance.

The victory brought the Beavers to 3-0-0 in the season, and they will face Babson tomorrow in the annual "Beavers vs. Beavers" game.

Wilson overcomes record

By Tom Veith

Alan Wilson '67 received a long and well-deserved standing ovation last Thursday, as he surpassed the single-season scoring mark. A last-minute burst against N.Y. Maritime Academy boosted him 3 points over the old standard.

A partisan Tech crowd anticipated the record, urging him to shoot each time he had a chance. Big Alex refused to yield to their backing. Coach Jack Barry, announcing for Wilson to break the record before the home crowd, said, "The game is over when he has a chance to score.

The record-breaker, a fifteen-point jumping in the middle of the third set, brought MIT fans to their feet as well.

Koch's jump was met with a standing ovation.

The record was placed alongside the two Most Valuable Player awards that he received during his career, and the top 50 on the list of All-Americans. The bigKoch's jump was met with a standing ovation.

The record was placed alongside the two Most Valuable Player awards that he received during his career, and the top 50 on the list of All-Americans. The bigKoch's jump was met with a standing ovation.

The record was placed alongside the two Most Valuable Player awards that he received during his career, and the top 50 on the list of All-Americans. The bigKoch's jump was met with a standing ovation.