Accounts and payables is a cause of what the Friday and Saturday on-campus movies are like.

This weekend the films represent two totally different aspects of life. Friday's film is "The Collector" starring Terence Stamp and Samantha Eggar, and is about a frightened person, someone who does not have the correct contact with the rest of the world. If for no other reason, the movie is appealing for the fine performances given by both of these talented actors. "The Collector" is a movie that you will remember for quite a while. As an interesting sequel you might wish to see "Repulsion" which will be presented in a few weeks.

On Saturday the feature is "Von Ryan's Express," a Hollywood-type super-war movie. There are no great battle scenes, but a lot of well-cast action involving all sorts of different characters. The characters range from mile-a-minute hero Frank Sinatra to an enemy officer who supposedly captures the heart of the audience. In other words, this film was made with one object in mind: box office successes, which indeed it has become since it is, after all, reasonably entertaining. And then again, "The Tiger Woman" is also presented on Saturday.

"Great for a Date"

You only know the half of it.

Our business no longer hangs by a fiber—cellulosic or otherwise. Far from it. We're researching, producing and marketing a rich range of products—chemicals, plastics, paints and coatings, forest products, petroleum and natural gas products, as well as a full family of man-made fibers—all over the world.

"Celanese' sales growth, its hefty interests in chemicals and its hugely expanded foreign operations have already moved it into a big new class," said a CHEMICAL WEEK special report.

During the 10 years prior to 1964, sales more than quadrupled, chalked up a growth rate more than six times that of all U. S. manufacturing industries. And the trend is stronger than ever, with corporate sales for 1965 estimated at 23% higher than last year's record of $701 million.

What does this mean to you?

Since our future expansion depends on our continued ability to develop top-notch people, it is, after all, in our best interest to bring you along as fast as you can take it, and give you all the support you need—in your technical specialty or in management.

LET'S MAKE A DATE. Give our college representative a chance to fill you in on these talented actors.
