Talking Rock
By Don Davis

In their stand at the Unicorn Coffeehouse last week, the Lovin' Spoonful showed what they mean by "good time music." The casually-dressed folk-rock quartet from Greenwich Village generated excitement with the happy sound which they produce. One of today's most diversified groups, their repertoire runs from slow blues tunes like "Daydream," to the type of music which they produce. One of their unusual names was derived from Mississippi John Hurt's "fishin' blues," which they have recorded. Their unusual name was derived from their more raucous numbers, "in the manner of the most diversely groups.”

The round-faced drummer commented that long hair had been "in" for 2008 years before the forty year period preceding 1963, when an obscure British group rose to prominence with its recording of "Love Me Do!" (Please turn to Page 12)

MIT awarded contract for disarmament study

The US Arms Control and Disarmament Agency has awarded a contract of $222,500 to MIT for a preliminary design study on the relation of arms controls to limited wars. The research will be conducted in the MIT Center for International Studies as a part of the center's arms control project directed by Dr. Lincoln P. Bloomfield, Professor of Political Science.

PROGRESS IS OUR MOST IMPORTANT PRODUCT

A secret handshake won't help you make V.P. at General Electric.

Something that will help move your career along at a healthy clip is a strong, steady hand when responsibility and important duties are thrust upon you. Plus a firm grip on your special field of interest, whether it's marketing, finance or nuclear physics.

And it won't hurt a bit if you also want to strengthen your grip on the subject that interests you. General Electric runs one of the world's largest "graduate schools," with courses in everything from advertising to microelectronics. You can stay on top of developments in your field by periodically going to school at G.E... and learning from G-E "professors," selected from the country's top ranks of engineering, marketing and manufacturing experts. If you want to work and study and get ahead in this kind of company, this company wants you. Come to General Electric, where the young men are important men.
