DODGING THE DRAFT

By Mike Rodburg

39. Yeo, T. L., professor of aeronautics and astronautics, has arrived at a plan to preserve the Leaning Tower of Pisa in Italy. The famous landmark is still shifting with each storm, and is only 4 inches off the normal since it was built in 1174. Because of its popularity with tourists, Pisa wants to take no chances that the tower will collapse. The

1. It is not for man to change the famous landmark of Italy, nor should any project be considered which will cause the tower to fall. The tower is said to be a symbol of Italian architecture and has been a focal point for tourists for centuries.

2. The tower is a valuable historical and cultural resource, and its preservation should be considered prior to any changes being made.

3. The tower has been designated as a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and its preservation is important for protecting this internationally recognized site.

4. Any potential project should undergo rigorous testing and evaluation to ensure its safety and compatibility with the tower's integrity.

5. The proposed changes should be discussed and approved by all stakeholders involved, including local residents, historians, architects, and conservationists.

6. If the changes must proceed, they should be executed with utmost care and precision, ensuring the tower's structural integrity is maintained.

7. The tower's preservation is not just about its physical condition; it also holds significant cultural value, and efforts should be made to preserve its historical and cultural significance.

8. The proposed changes should be thoroughly evaluated for their potential impact on the tower's environment, including any possible harm to its surroundings.

9. The tower's preservation is a matter of public interest, and the public should have a say in any decisions regarding its future.

10. The tower's preservation is a matter of national pride, and efforts should be made to preserve it for future generations.

11. The tower's preservation is a matter of international concern, and efforts should be made to preserve it for the world's cultural heritage.

12. The tower's preservation is a matter of economic concern, and efforts should be made to preserve it for tourism and cultural heritage.
