V pulled even with the Dartmouth I-r's and MIT's lightweight crew entered.

The varsity had the closest race of the day, finishing only one and three-quarters lengths behind Yale and Dartmouth shells, which had a dead heat for second. No other colleges participated.

Dartmouth leads early

Four of MIT's heavy boats beat Yale and a six seat one over the Techmen in the break from their starting line. MIT and Yale pulled even with the Dartmouth boats.

The sailing team led with a win in the first race and two losses to the starters in the second race. MIT led five boats with three boats stroking at 34. The Techmen took the lead with slightly less power, but recovered to finish third for the remainder of the races. With three quarters of a mile to go, MIT held a lead of three seats on Yale and five on Dartmouth.

Billiard final scheduled for Solar

Friedman meets Ferrara tomorrow

By Russ Mosteller

The MIT billiard tournament began yesterday and will continue today and tomorrow, with the finals scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

The varsity had the closest race of the day, finishing only one and three-quarters lengths behind Yale and Dartmouth shells, which had a dead heat for second. No other colleges participated.

The varsity had the closest race of the day, finishing only one and three-quarters lengths behind Yale and Dartmouth shells, which had a dead heat for second. No other colleges participated.

The varsity had the closest race of the day, finishing only one and three-quarters lengths behind Yale and Dartmouth shells, which had a dead heat for second. No other colleges participated.

Dartmouth leads early

Four of MIT's heavy boats beat Yale and a six seat one over the Techmen in the break from their starting line. MIT and Yale pulled even with the Dartmouth boats.

The sailing team led with a win in the first race and two losses to the starters in the second race. MIT led five boats with three boats stroking at 34. The Techmen took the lead with slightly less power, but recovered to finish third for the remainder of the races. With three quarters of a mile to go, MIT held a lead of three seats on Yale and five on Dartmouth.

Billiard final scheduled for Solar

Friedman meets Ferrara tomorrow

By Russ Mosteller

The MIT billiard tournament began yesterday and will continue today and tomorrow, with the finals scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

The varsity had the closest race of the day, finishing only one and three-quarters lengths behind Yale and Dartmouth shells, which had a dead heat for second. No other colleges participated.

The varsity had the closest race of the day, finishing only one and three-quarters lengths behind Yale and Dartmouth shells, which had a dead heat for second. No other colleges participated.

The varsity had the closest race of the day, finishing only one and three-quarters lengths behind Yale and Dartmouth shells, which had a dead heat for second. No other colleges participated.

Dartmouth leads early

Four of MIT's heavy boats beat Yale and a six seat one over the Techmen in the break from their starting line. MIT and Yale pulled even with the Dartmouth boats.

The sailing team led with a win in the first race and two losses to the starters in the second race. MIT led five boats with three boats stroking at 34. The Techmen took the lead with slightly less power, but recovered to finish third for the remainder of the races. With three quarters of a mile to go, MIT held a lead of three seats on Yale and five on Dartmouth.

Billiard final scheduled for Solar

Friedman meets Ferrara tomorrow

By Russ Mosteller

The MIT billiard tournament began yesterday and will continue today and tomorrow, with the finals scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

The varsity had the closest race of the day, finishing only one and three-quarters lengths behind Yale and Dartmouth shells, which had a dead heat for second. No other colleges participated.

The varsity had the closest race of the day, finishing only one and three-quarters lengths behind Yale and Dartmouth shells, which had a dead heat for second. No other colleges participated.

The varsity had the closest race of the day, finishing only one and three-quarters lengths behind Yale and Dartmouth shells, which had a dead heat for second. No other colleges participated.

Dartmouth leads early

Four of MIT's heavy boats beat Yale and a six seat one over the Techmen in the break from their starting line. MIT and Yale pulled even with the Dartmouth boats.

The sailing team led with a win in the first race and two losses to the starters in the second race. MIT led five boats with three boats stroking at 34. The Techmen took the lead with slightly less power, but recovered to finish third for the remainder of the races. With three quarters of a mile to go, MIT held a lead of three seats on Yale and five on Dartmouth.

Billiard final scheduled for Solar

Friedman meets Ferrara tomorrow

By Russ Mosteller

The MIT billiard tournament began yesterday and will continue today and tomorrow, with the finals scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

The varsity had the closest race of the day, finishing only one and three-quarters lengths behind Yale and Dartmouth shells, which had a dead heat for second. No other colleges participated.

The varsity had the closest race of the day, finishing only one and three-quarters lengths behind Yale and Dartmouth shells, which had a dead heat for second. No other colleges participated.

The varsity had the closest race of the day, finishing only one and three-quarters lengths behind Yale and Dartmouth shells, which had a dead heat for second. No other colleges participated.