Beaver Key reorganizes;
new elections postponed

By George Jones

Beaver Key, the Junior Class newspaper, is to hold a special election on Tuesday, May 17, to elect new officers. The new election will replace the final Interfraternity Conference meeting of the year at the time of the undergraduate barbeque in Boston Thursday night.

Eight former IFC Chairmen and Presidents from twenty-five of the existing twenty-eight fraternities are planning to attend these meetings. The meeting will be held at the Harvard Union building on Saturday, May 7, and will be open to all undergraduates.

This will be the first election held under the new constitution of the IFC, which was adopted at the meeting on March 1.

Orders for 68 rings to be taken this week

Members of the Class of 1968 can order their class rings this week, May 16-20, in the lobby of the building 10. Representatives from Deutscher Club, the Class of 1968 and 20th, and the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity will be in attendance.

Orders for the rings will be taken every day from 9 am to 5 pm. A five dollar deposit will be required, and any questions can be answered by Scot Drut, '80 President, 200.

Community-service events get aid totaling $181,000

Tutoring Plus, a tutoring program on campus, has received two grants totaling $55,000 from the Permanent Education Act of 1965. In addition, grants of $10,000 have been received from the Mellon Foundation.

Both Tutoring Plus and the SAT preparation program, sponsored by the California Institute of Technology, have their operations expanded by the grants.

MIT fraternities man the Back Bay of Boston declared war on litter at 1 pm Sunday afternoon as part of "Operation Cleanup." They received cooperation from the Boston Department of Public Works and were supplied with ten brooms and rakes for the area and a street cleaning machine. The traffic police placed hoods on the parking meters and three motorcycle police on duty to prevent any trouble. Reports from the major Boston newspapers and television stations covered the event.
