At the dinner conference, Professor Malnook spoke briefly about the new version of 18.01 now being offered in the course. Greatly improved over last year's experimental course, 18.01 studies the concepts of a function, a limit, and mathematics in general.

Concert planned with Josh White

By Jim Simmons

One of the favorites of the folk-blues world will be making an appearance at MIT soon. Josh White, well recognized as one of the patrons of folk gospel and blues music for many years, will be on campus on November 3. He has a style which makes people realize that folk music is still alive. The concert, sponsored by the Class of 1966, will be held in Kresge Auditorium Friday, October 28. Tickets are $2 a seat and will go on sale Monday at 9 a.m. in the lobby of Building 10.
