Stendall to discuss Reformation

Edward Stendall, Frothingham Professor of Biblical Studies at Harvard University, will speak on "The Reformation, Memorial of Men and Machines" Sunday at 3 p.m. in the MIT Chapel.

The distinguished Biblical scholar, an ordained priest in the Church of Sweden and the third holder of the Frothingham Chair, will broadcast live from the MIT Chapel. He will return to MIT in 1984 as President of the Student Christian Movement in Sweden and was Chairman of the inter-European Consultation of Youth Work at the World Council of Churches Institute in Rosne, Switzerland. He is presently a member of the Commission on Reconciliation and the New Testament, as well as author of numerous articles and essays in scholarly journals and encyclopedias. He is currently editor of "The Harvard Theological Review."
