MIT's freshman cross-country team finished second in the country by placing third in the college division of the IC4A championships, held in New York.

Rippled results mark

John Scales of Colby followed up last week's second place in the New England championships by setting another mark this week. He covered the three mile course in 14:14. Ben Wilson, who has been MIT's top runner all season, finished second in 14:53. Mike Wall has been the only person that Wilson has not been able to top this season. In the university division, Art Dulong of Holy Cross finished first in 14:26.

The remainder of the engineers had some of their best times of the season, as the top four Tech runners finished in the top twenty-five. John Owens finished fourteenth in 15:17. Arthur Ladrew was nineteenth in 16:23 and Larry Petro finished twentieth with a time of 16:31. Eric Darling rounded out MIT's scoring by finishing fourteenth.

The track team has been one of the most successful for the engineer freshmen in the past several years. In meet events they were under other newspapers around the country.

The section in the Daily News was somewhat unforgiving to MIT athletics. It said: "Although the team is making good progress, the work is not of a quality that will enable the club to compete successfully." The Daily News is the leading university newspaper in the country.

The purpose of the Daily News was to spread the message of MIT athletics. It said: "The number of fans is increasing, and the quality of the sport is improving." The Daily News is the leading university newspaper in the country.

The Tech basketball team lost its last game of the season, 93-99, to Harvard. The team finished the season with a record of 18-8, the best record in MIT history.

The players were led by sophomore guard Alex Wilson, who scored a career-high 30 points in the game. Wilson was named the most valuable player of the game.

The Tech defense was unable to contain Harvard's senior guard, who scored 32 points. The team was also outrebounded, 43-31.

For the season, Wilson led the team in scoring with an average of 15.2 points per game. He also led the team in rebounds with 6.8 per game.

The Tech basketball team will play in the ECAC tournament, which begins tomorrow. The team is hoping to make a deep run in the tournament and possibly earn an NCAA bid.
