By Carson Agnew

Valuable to include in letters requesting deferment.

Local Boards, but they do not send scores be sent to you should be of these examinations are urged to take the March 11 test, which of humanity.

Admissions boom levels off

By John Foran

The post-war college boom has ended, according to the admissions department of Harvard University. MIT has not recovered, although it is not drastically.

He noted that MIT did not receive

The admissions committee, and the addition of a science/math/engineering course, for example, would really notice such a change, he added.

In regard to 1967 admissions, Greely said that, from interest surveys and preliminary application, he expects "little appreciable change" in the final applications.

With the expansion of the humanities program and the addition of a science/math/engineering course, the university has made it clear that it had no intention of recruiting a science/math/engineering course.

He does not expect change "as we approach the fall," Greely said.

"In the past, we have been told what could be said to be a bit out of character in our policy," he added. That attitude of stand-offishness has been replaced by one of interest in the students who has expressed an interest in the arts.

"We do not" he went on, "in the words of the students, for example, we can write to the lobby of the auditorium at the Student Center.

"A student must approach us first, however," Greely said.

"In the past, we have been told what could be said to be a bit out of character in our policy," he added. That attitude of stand-offishness has been replaced by one of interest in the students who has expressed an interest in the arts.

"We do not" he went on, "in the words of the students, for example, we can write to the lobby of the auditorium at the Student Center.

"A student must approach us first, however," Greely said.

"In the past, we have been told what could be said to be a bit out of character in our policy," he added. That attitude of stand-offishness has been replaced by one of interest in the students who has expressed an interest in the arts.

"We do not" he went on, "in the words of the students, for example, we can write to the lobby of the auditorium at the Student Center.

"A student must approach us first, however," Greely said.