White Water Club to hold indoor slalom races

This Saturday at 7:00 p.m., the first of 30 racers will capsize his boat in the MIT swimming pool. The MIT White Water Club is sponsoring an unusual event — an indoor slalom race for kayaks and one man canoes.

During the race, striped poles are hung in pairs over the water, each pair being a gate. Boats are expected to go through a prescribed sequence of gates, including four gates which must be passed while paddling backwards. Contestants are also required to roll their boats, hanging for a brief moment with head down until they right themselves again. In the slalom race, both speed and accuracy determine the racer's score. Penalty points are assessed for violations such as missing gates, hitting gates, and failing to do the required rolls. These accumulated penalty points are added to the time it took the racer to go through the sequence, mission is 50c, payable at the door. There is a practice session from 4-6 which is open to the public, and the Mount Holyoke Water Ballet will perform during intermission.

Can you make it as a modern banker?

A banker today is a lot more than a money specialist who waits for the community to come to him. He's a well-rounded, imaginative individual who knows how to present a package of financial services to fill his client's needs. He's professionally involved with every kind of business, from government to space exploration to problems of emerging nations. And he can't be pigeonholed because versatility is one of the keys to his success.

He has job status and pride of profession. And his compensation and employee benefits are the envy of many.

His training is thorough and guided by experienced seniors who cushion the rough spots and put him on the high road when he's ready in his own mind and deed.

Before you make your big career decision, take a long look at banking. Ambition is the key, and the best way to check yourself out is to set up a give-and-take session with a Chase Manhattan Banker.

One more thing.

Modern banking is in. It asks for versatile, creative, imaginative men who want to range the community, the nation and the whole wide world.

Discuss the possibilities of a career in modern banking. A Chase Manhattan banker will be on campus soon. Your Placement Office will tell you when and where.
