By Paul Johnson

The Boston Intercollegiate Council will hold its Spring Convention Sunday, May 14, on the topic of Birth Control Legislation. The panel will feature controversy on the topic of Birth Control Legislation.

The discussion will be presented free of cost to the Boston college community.

Baird, whose appearance at MIT hinged largely on the outcome of yesterday's event, has been a frequent speaker at other campuses in the Boston area in recent weeks.

Arrested at MIT Monday, May 15, 1967

The person who prints, publishes, or distributes any pamphlet, printed paper, book, newspaper, or leaflet or any instrument, advice, direction, information, or reference, or any instrument, advice, direction, information, or reference, is a criminal offense.

The law states, "a mother can not tell her parishoners could be sent to prison. Baird's aim is to "give out birth control information free to all who want it.""

Rosenblith studies brains

Dr. Rosenblith emphasizes his fields of interest as the quantification of neuroelectric activity and brain function; sensory compounds; science, technology and society with emphasis upon engineering and living language. As to the genesis of such multifaceted interests, he was found myself drawn into an undergraduate systems program, the future of which has been in doubt the past few months, will be continued another year by the Sloan School of Management.

"Casino Royale" at the Sack Savoy shortly after 1:30 am and continuing to 3:00 am, attracted a well-publicized crowd.

The turnout, however, for the well-publicized event was far in excess of all expectations as over 15,000 people, mainly college students, were gathered to see the free showing of the new James Bond spoof "Casino Royale." This year, according to Prof. Forrester, approval was delayed because of a re-evaluation of resources and the need for an expanded staff. Prof. Forrester noted that there remains opposition to the program within the department, although there are many through the Institute favoring it. He feels that the program benefits more than the students involved and could provide an expanded role for the department in other departments.

Course XV credit per term, with all course work being taken pass-fail.

Sloan School to continue USP; Students gain course freedom

By Carson Agnew

The Undergraduate Systems Program, the future of which has been in doubt the past few months, will be continued another year by the Sloan School of Management.

"I'm really pleased, 10 or 12 sophomores will be selected for the program, which offers 27 hours of coursework that can be given the choice of receiving credit at the undergraduate level or at the graduate level."

Forrester noted that there remains opposition to the program within the department, although there are many through the Institute favoring it. He feels that the program benefits more than the students involved and could provide an expanded role for the department in other departments.

Course XV credit per term, with all course work being taken pass-fail.

Fifteen arrested

By Dean Baker

This is a result of a well-publicized event was far in excess of all expectations as over 15,000 people, mainly college students, were gathered to see the free showing of the new James Bond spoof "Casino Royale." This year, according to Prof. Forrester, approval was delayed because of a re-evaluation of resources and the need for an expanded staff. Prof. Forrester noted that there remains opposition to the program within the department, although there are many through the Institute favoring it. He feels that the program benefits more than the students involved and could provide an expanded role for the department in other departments.

Course XV credit per term, with all course work being taken pass-fail.

Riot breaks at Bond preview

By Alan Goldberg

"Casino Royale" at the Sack Savoy Saturday morning, was quoted as saying, "There is no crime in being a tool. You don't send idiots to jail."/

Police raided the crowd which turned out to see a preview of "Casino Royale" at the Sack Savoy Saturday morning. Estimates placed the mob's number around 10,000 — not allowing for the considerable number of people coming and going.