Meet Terry Vander Werff, 22
He goes to M.I.T.
He has been an engineer at a steel plant
He can read 4,200 words a minute

Webering Terry's head to the upper zone (He had him as a patient) you can't believe that he's actually reading. He must be dreaming.

But let's see:

Terry can read the average novel in 21/2 hours. He studies 12 to 15 hours a week and reads five to six books a week. He's never read the political sciences books in less than 70 minutes. Even so, he taught himself to read 120 words a minute before he was 20 years old.

Moreover, he has re-read all that he's read right down to particulars.

Terry is not a mental freak. He never does he

He can read five political science books in less than 90 minutes.

Terry was one of our better students. He started the course right down to particulars.

He was not yet answered.

The last time I heard from him, he was teaching at a steel plant.
