New poet reads works

By John Lowenstein

Poetry reading? At MIT? Yes, that's right; Lou Lipsitz will give a poetry reading in the Library Lounge tomorrow night at 8:30. That's not all; this may be a surprise to many Techmen, but we've been having poets come to read at MIT for the past seven years.

Dylan Thomas reads

It all started when Prof. Theodore Wood of the Humanities Department enticed Dylan Thomas to give a reading here. Thomas, with his booming voice and powerful will, had inspired many people across the United States. A number of young poets took up his idea and began reading to audiences too. This was a big step forward fulfilling Dylan Thomas' idea of getting poetry out of fancy towers and bringing it to the people. Thomas was a big hit at MIT, encouraging Prof. Wood to bring more poets to our campus.

Prof. Wood and Prof. Barry

Spacks, also of the Humanities Department, will give a poetry reading at Brown University to read his own poetry. Students from several colleges were present, and one fellow came all the way from his own poetry. Students from

Brown University to read his poetry.

The program for this term began in October, when Edward Field read his entertaining poetry to an unusually large audience in the Library Lounge.

Student poetry

Last Thursday, Prof. Spacks read some of his poetry as did

Price Tillett, Abe Igelfeld, and Michael Harris, all undergraduates. As mentioned earlier, Lou Lipsitz will read from his book "Cold Water" tomorrow night. To conclude the program for this semester, Robert Creasy will be here December 6.

The Humanities Department picks adds a set amount each term for these readings. This term is entrusted to Prof. Spacks, Prof. Miller, and Prof. Goldfarb, who will select the program for next term.

Guess who forgot his NoDoz

As Rip Van Winkle failed to learn, there's a time and a place for sleeping. If you find yourself nodding off at the wrong time or in the wrong place, reach for your NoDoz. (You do carry some with you at all times, don't you?) A couple of NoDoz and you're with it again. And NoDoz is non habit-forming. NoDoz. When you can't be caught napping. THE ONE TO TAKE WHEN YOU HAVE TO STAY ALERT.
