Lose in overtime

Skaters fall to Trinity, 6-5

(Continued from Page 12) to completely dominate the game. They are one of the fastest skating clubs the engineers have met all season. Halfway through the period, they scored their first goal. Their goalie seemed to be the weakest part of their team. Cadonaur, they scored their first goal. In the second period, the home team settled down and began to play with the skill they showed against Amherst and began to contain their opponents, whom they outshot in the final two periods 17-12. A defensive lapse gave Trinity a breakaway and the score was tied.

Bob Petkun '68 put KIT out in front again halfway through the final period, but Trinity again tied the score only 30 seconds later. With less than three minutes left in the game Talalay scored to gain the engineers the lead. Trinity pulled their goalie for an extra forward and with 48 seconds left in the game, fired through a maze of players to send the game into overtime.

Penalty in overtime

Eriksen came up with a big save with only seconds left in the third period as he stopped a breakaway. One minute into the overtime period, another breakaway was broken up at the last minute by Harris, who received a booking penalty for his efforts. A man down, Tech held off Trinity for two minutes, but just as the penalty ended, a shot from the blue line bounced off a Trinity stick to give the visitors the win.

THE SADDEST SUMMER OF SAMUEL S.

"Glorious... a milestone in Dorothy Sayers' career." - The New York Times 60c

SOME PEOPLE GET EXPERIENCE IN A JOB... OTHER PEOPLE GET OLDER.

That's a big difference. And it all depends on where you work, and with whom you work. You can start someplace that has all the proper systems engineering credentials — significant contracts, modern physical plant, and the usual fringe benefits — and find yourself a couple of years later, just a couple of years behind.

Or, you can come to a place like MITRE and get experience. And grow. We believe in the credibility, of course. (We happen to think they're the best.) But we have something more. An attitude. We want you to get the best systems experience in the business. We want to show you what we know with you, want you to absorb it as fast as you can. The quicker you grasp things, the quicker things get done.

"I don't have two years' experience. I have one year twice.

The more experience you get, the faster you grow. And that's to our mutual benefit.

Here's the kind of caper you get.

MITRE is a pioneer in the design and development of advanced communications systems for the Federal Aviation Administration, the Department of Defense, the Department of Transportation and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The quicker things get done.

THE GREY WLOV.

I don't like to talk to people who have no experience at all. And have a degree in electronics or physics. Or, you can come to a place that has all the proper systems engineering credentials — significant contracts, modern physical plant, and the usual fringe benefits — and find yourself a couple of years later, just a couple of years behind.
