Hovitz lists Inscomm's accomplishments in eight areas of student affairs this year

By Bob Hovitz

As the body representative of all undergraduate interests, the Institute Committee is responsible for identifying and fulfilling student needs. The committee serves as a forum for student expression; it is the link between the student body and the student's various committees and the executive council.

I. Recognizing student interest in issues extending beyond the campus, Inscomm has chosen and poorly executed programs. For example, the program "The Challenge of Magapolis," "Toward the Twenty-First Century," and five panel discussions included in this issue. Inscomm has included an alternate proposal: the expansion of the General Catalogue, and publication of a special booklet with more detailed course descriptions. This year, Inscomm has continued its efforts to involve undergraduates in the Institute's Publications Committee to implement the latter plan. It is now the responsibility of next year's Institute Committee to complete this project.

II. Feedback: This year faculty members have distributed substantially thousands of student-written questionnaires concerning the evaluation of both course content and instructor effectiveness. The results will be compiled and distributed to all interested members of the MIT community.

IV. Freshmen Experiences

A. Residence Week: To provide the freshmen with a more meaningful basis for his residence decision, Inscomm has awarded a number of specific changes to the current student-oriented environment. The main goals for the new year's Institute Committee will include: the first phase of the Freshman Environmental Education Program, the development of a Freshman Orientation Program, and so forth. Probable new areas of work for the next year. Probable new areas of work for the next year.

V. Extracurricular Activities

The Public Relations Committee now works in two areas, public relations and alumni relations. To date, the PRC's activities are the "Public Relations Office," and "Public Relations Office." The PRC has been working on the Grassroots Calendar, a graphical listing of on-campus events, and on a new, "Parents' Review," in addition to its current activities.

The Public Relations Committee resurfaces; keeps campus and public informed

By George Katsiafias

This year has seen the continued evolution of PRC from an internal public relations unit to a true public relations committee. Recent changes have been to publicize what life is like at MIT. The PRC's activities include the "Public Relations Committee," and "Public Relations Committee." The PRC has been working on the Grassroots Calendar, a graphical listing of on-campus events.

One of the ways the Public Relations Committee has worked to inform commons chairmen and residents is by holding tours for high school students, and by holding tours for high school students.

The CSE (outside MIT)

One of the areas of CSE's activities is the "Public Relations Committee." This program has been working on the Grassroots Calendar, and on a new, "Parents' Review," in addition to its current activities.

The Public Relations Committee resurfaces; keeps campus and public informed

The Institute Committee for 1967-68 consisted of David Peterson '68, member at large; Al Singer '68, an advisor to the University; "The Place of Religion in the Rational World"; "The Challenge of Magapolis"; and "Toward the Twenty-First Century." The conference itself catalyzed many new ideas and projects, and many new projects describe elsewhere in this issue, Inscomm as a body this year.

The Inscomm Executive Committee for 1967-68 consisted of David Peterson '68, member at large; Al Singer '68, an advisor to the University; "The Place of Religion in the Rational World"; "The Challenge of Magapolis"; and "Toward the Twenty-First Century." The conference itself catalyzed many new ideas and projects, and many new projects describe elsewhere in this issue, Inscomm as a body this year.

The Inscomm Executive Committee for 1967-68 consisted of David Peterson '68, member at large; Al Singer '68, an advisor to the University; "The Place of Religion in the Rational World"; "The Challenge of Magapolis"; and "Toward the Twenty-First Century." The conference itself catalyzed many new ideas and projects, and many new projects describe elsewhere in this issue, Inscomm as a body this year.

The Inscomm Executive Committee for 1967-68 consisted of David Peterson '68, member at large; Al Singer '68, an advisor to the University; "The Place of Religion in the Rational World"; "The Challenge of Magapolis"; and "Toward the Twenty-First Century." The conference itself catalyzed many new ideas and projects, and many new projects describe elsewhere in this issue, Inscomm as a body this year.

These pages are compiled from a variety of sources and are intended to provide an overview of the activities. It was announced that senior faculty would be permitted to do so.

III. Education

A. Course Descriptions: To provide students with better information regarding the precise nature and specific requirements of MIT courses, including an explicit statement of prerequisite knowledge, the expected size and format of the class and the frequency and type of papers and examinations. Inscomm has evaluated two alternate proposals: 1) expansion of the General Catalogue, and 2) publication of a special booklet with more detailed course descriptions. This year, Inscomm has continued its efforts to involve undergraduates in the Institute's Publications Committee to implement the latter plan. It is now the responsibility of next year's Institute Committee to complete this project.

B. Freshmen Experiences: This year faculty members have distributed substantially thousands of student-written questionnaires concerning the evaluation of both course content and instructor effectiveness. The results will be compiled and distributed to all interested members of the MIT community.

IV. Freshmen Experiences

A. Residence Week: To provide the freshmen with a more meaningful basis for his residence decision, Inscomm has awarded a number of specific changes to the current student-oriented environment. The main goals for the new year's Institute Committee will include: the first phase of the Freshman Environmental Education Program, the development of a Freshman Orientation Program, and so forth. Probable new areas of work for the next year. Probable new areas of work for the next year.

V. Extracurricular Activities

The Public Relations Committee now works in two areas, public relations and alumni relations. To date, the PRC's activities are the "Public Relations Office," and "Public Relations Office." The PRC has been working on the Grassroots Calendar, a graphical listing of on-campus events.

One of the ways the Public Relations Committee has worked to inform commons chairmen and residents is by holding tours for high school students, and by holding tours for high school students.

The CSE (outside MIT)

One of the areas of CSE's activities is the "Public Relations Committee." This program has been working on the Grassroots Calendar, and on a new, "Parents' Review," in addition to its current activities.

The Public Relations Committee resurfaces; keeps campus and public informed

The Institute Committee for 1967-68 consisted of David Peterson '68, member at large; Al Singer '68, an advisor to the University; "The Place of Religion in the Rational World"; "The Challenge of Magapolis"; and "Toward the Twenty-First Century." The conference itself catalyzed many new ideas and projects, and many new projects describe elsewhere in this issue, Inscomm as a body this year.

The Inscomm Executive Committee for 1967-68 consisted of David Peterson '68, member at large; Al Singer '68, an advisor to the University; "The Place of Religion in the Rational World"; "The Challenge of Magapolis"; and "Toward the Twenty-First Century." The conference itself catalyzed many new ideas and projects, and many new projects describe elsewhere in this issue, Inscomm as a body this year.

The Inscomm Executive Committee for 1967-68 consisted of David Peterson '68, member at large; Al Singer '68, an advisor to the University; "The Place of Religion in the Rational World"; "The Challenge of Magapolis"; and "Toward the Twenty-First Century." The conference itself catalyzed many new ideas and projects, and many new projects describe elsewhere in this issue, Inscomm as a body this year.

The Inscomm Executive Committee for 1967-68 consisted of David Peterson '68, member at large; Al Singer '68, an advisor to the University; "The Place of Religion in the Rational World"; "The Challenge of Magapolis"; and "Toward the Twenty-First Century." The conference itself catalyzed many new ideas and projects, and many new projects describe elsewhere in this issue, Inscomm as a body this year.

The Inscomm Executive Committee for 1967-68 consisted of David Peterson '68, member at large; Al Singer '68, an advisor to the University; "The Place of Religion in the Rational World"; "The Challenge of Magapo...