Since this is my first article for The Tech I will bring you up to date on some of the things that have been done. There were three sessions. Three were sessions that covered the various points of view of the students, faculty, and administration, to bring them closer together where new relationships can form. The first and second sessions are those where new relationships can form. There were three sessions. Three were sessions that covered the various points of view of the students, faculty, and administration, to bring them closer together where new relationships can form. The first and second sessions are those where new relationships can form.

Letters to the Tech

To the Editor

The announcement of Straight T winners came as a great shock to knowledgeable members of the MIT community. Those who had witnessed the demonstration last week, or whose history, he also assumed only one loss during the regular season, and that due to an injury. 2. Steve Broom—lance-corporate captain 1967. Steve set the MIT career record in scoring, led the team in scoring 2 out of 3 years, was president of the Men's Association, and was the top student on the team for three years. 3. Greg Wilson & Peter Farley, not only named to the All New England team in lacrosse but also made honorable mention All American as well. One of the leading scorers on the team, Wheeler's hard nosed policy-making skills were seen in his handling of the community confrontations with Scherbro. In addition, Wheeler received seven varsity letters during his undergraduate career including one in outdoor track and lacrosse. The fact that this is so impressive is not surprising. It is inexecutable that these three exceptionally fine athletes did not wear the same uniform. Technical and regional recognition required for the honor. The omission of these men is insensitive and indicates the lack of judgment, lack of interest in the recognition of the Varsity Club Council. As a team captain and member of the Council present at the election meeting, I can only conclude that I am now thoroughly ashamed to be in any association with Varsity Club Council and hope that in the future the election of Straight T winners will be left to the coaches.

Tom Chea '68

College World Good times at Alabama colleges

By Dean Roller

Although the state of Alabama has been frequently maligned for its problems in the area of race relations, the state is also experiencing significant positive developments. This year, the state has been host to several important events that have brought national attention to the issues facing the people of Alabama. Two of these events are the election of Governor George Wallace and the anniversary of the Civil Rights Movement.

Governor Wallace, in his first term as governor, faced significant opposition from the state's black population. Despite this, he was able to win re-election in 1962 and served a second term in 1964. His tenure as governor was marked by his opposition to civil rights legislation and his support for segregationist policies. However, his election was also seen as a symbol of the struggle for equality and justice in the state.

The anniversary of the Civil Rights Movement, which was marked by a series of events throughout the state, was also an important moment in Alabama's history. The movement was characterized by protests, sit-ins, and other forms of civil disobedience, and it ultimately led to significant changes in the state's laws and policies. Alabama was one of the states that was most affected by the movement, and its history continues to be shaped by the events of that time.

Overall, the state of Alabama has made significant progress in recent years, and the people of the state can feel proud of the strides that have been made towards greater equality and justice. However, there is still much work to be done, and the challenges facing the state remain significant.