Concerning Research Assistants, Dean Cost announced that "we believe we cannot obtain consideration for occupational deferments in the case of Research Assistants, including those with full-time appointments. The Institute will continue, however, to express their belief that the role of the Research Assistant is "clearly a vital one" to the research work of the Institute and is valuable for the graduate and advanced undergraduate educational ef-dot.

Despite the apparently unequivocal meaning of the Selective Service directive, the Graduate School Office will continue to write to local boards at the request of any graduate student, including Research Assistants, Fellowes, Trainees, and part-time teaching Assistants.
