Teddy sees black revolt

(continued from page 2)

in the context of the white power struggle in their society. There is, he said, a vast amount of energies underlying the black community, as expressed in the "Black Panthers movement," and the "Black Power" movement.

At this point, Hayden finally made a point on his stated topic: the purpose of the proposed article was the advancement of the Black Power movement. Hayden released the following statement: "It is my privilege to speak on his topic." Hayden released the following statement: "It is my privilege to speak on this topic." Hayden released the following statement: "It is my privilege to speak on this topic."

Hayden sees black revolt (continued from page 1)

"I thought I was in a room of light, a room of enlightenment. It was bright, it was white, it was clean, it was cool, it was..."

"All the candidates are pigs! The movement is fascist and must be destroyed. Some must be exterminated."

Two reasons for joining Du Pont, and three for quitting.

1. Du Pont offers open-end opportunity. You don't go into a training program. You go to work--in a specialty area that interests you. This way you can progress and grow professionally.

2. Du Pont works at the outer limits. Sure, everybody claims they do the far-out research. But in Du Pont, they're talking about professional progress and help you find the specific field you want to grow in. We call it "planned mobility.

3. They go to universities, to teach--recognized laboratories, in research at Du Pont. So you can get a Ph.D. and then work for another company, or even start your own business.

4. They go to space, or other government projects. So you can work on projects that are important to the nation.

5. They go to governmental agencies. So you can work on projects that are important to the nation.

6. They go to governments, to teach--recognized laboratories, in research at Du Pont. So you can get a Ph.D. and then work for another company, or even start your own business.