opposition from citizen's groups.

Money pointed out, however, that even if contracts are signed in the near future, he doesn't expect final conclusions to be reached on his study for at least another 18 months. Thus the ongoing delays which have long plagued the Inner Belt are by no means a thing of the past.

Cindy Helgerson, co-ed for UMOC, claims: "I'm just not an attractive man"

By Field Ace

This year's UMOC contest got off to one of the most unusual starts in MIT's history as an attractive co-ed, Cynthia Helgerson '70 entered the race Tuesday night.

A spokesman for Alpha Phi Omega, the organization sponsoring this year's contest which seeks out MIT's quintessential man, said that on other campuses it is fairly common for women to enter the race, as Cynthia put it, "I'm just not an attractive man."

The campaign got started Wednesday night in 2361T, as Cynthia's on-campus campaign manager, Mary Ann Rice, began

A Parker Fountain Pen makes ugly look beautiful.

When you pick up a Parker Fountain Pen, something beautiful happens. You somehow rediscover the Long Lost Art of Handwriting. Maybe it's because you can feel the ink flow onto the paper, smoothly. Effortlessly, or because you can actually control the way a word looks. Somehow you somehow rediscover the Long Lost Art of Handwriting.

But anyway, a Parker Fountain Pen brings out a touch of the artist in you. Parker makes a $1.98 plastic Fountain Pen for rich artists. Or the Parker 45 for only $5. Which is a beautiful price to pay for a work of art.

"71 Council votes boycott of Field Day

Coad nightengale competition is one of the highlights of Field Day, but the Class of 1971 will participate.

Wednesday night the sophomore class voted to formally notify Varsity Club, the organization sponsoring Field Day this year, that the Class of 1971 protests Field Day and will boycott the contest because "that no sense to the idea." The motion came from the floor during a discussion of methods for encouraging more people to attend Field Day. Varsity Club is the big money-making organization that needs money to be able to attract big crowds to the event. If Field Day this year, that the Class of 1971 will participate.

Voting by a show of hands and the motion passed by a large majority. It is unclear whether this motion of the sophomore council will eliminate Field Day as a viable entity, or what will happen to the event's finances if it is eliminated.
