Students participating in MIT faculty committees listed by administration

Ed. Note: In order to clarify the issue of student participation in the work of MIT committees, we present a list of student and alumni committee memberships. The categories listed are: Faculty, students, and alumni. The list is not exhaustive, as departmental committees and self-selected committees (such as those for the Student Senate) are not included.

Academic Performance

Two student interns invited to meet with the Academic Performance working group (which meets twice a term) were Gary L. Lippman '69 and Charles R. Moore '70.

Discipline

(When a case is being heard, the name of the student committee is listed.)

Student Academic Disciplinary Board

For the MIT Academic Suspension (1968-9)

Student Disciplinary Board

Richard L. Evans '70

Student Faculty Advisory Council

Robert A. Weinberg, Graduate-VII

Shirley A. Jackson, Graduate-VIII

Student Judicial Board

Bruce W. Johnson '70

Richard J. Moen '72

Student Academic Calendar

Gary F. Gut '70

Alan B. Harris, Graduate-VI

Student Athletics

James L. Hart, Graduate-VI

Patricia A. Murphy '70

Alan R. Miller '70

Credit questioned Harvard ROTC debated

By Alan Baugherden

The Harvard ROTC command, as part of the elimination of the ROTC program at Harvard, is seeking to have its funding reinstated. The ROTC program was terminated in 1968 after the Faculty voted to terminate it. Professor James Q. White, a member of the ROTC program committee that voted to terminate it, said that the program did not meet the standards set by the ROTC program. The ROTC program has been terminated due to the changing nature of the national security threat.

At the Faculty meeting, Professor White expressed his concern about the future of the ROTC program. He said that the program was not only important for the military, but also for the national security. He also mentioned that the program had a strong impact on the community and that it was important for the university to continue to support it.

However, many faculty members disagreed with White's assessment. Professor Robert A. Weinberg, Graduate-VII, said that the program was not effective and that it had a negative impact on the university. He also mentioned that the program was not well-supported and that it was not a priority for the university.

The debate continued, with many faculty members expressing their concerns about the future of the ROTC program. Some faculty members believed that the program should be reinstated, while others believed that it should be terminated. The resolution was to be debated further in the next meeting.

Relax and Divert CAMPUS' CUE

590 Commonwealth Ave. (Opposite U. B. Tower)

Pocket Billiards "Great for a Date"

Career hunt with 90 of the finest companies having operations located in the New Jersey/New York metropolitan area. On December 20-27 at the Marriott Motor Hotel, intersection of Garden State Parkway and the New Jersey Turnpike. For more details, including a listing of sponsoring companies, see your college placement director or write to the New Jersey section of Career-in "New Jersey".

Charles L. Miller

Visiting professor

Professor Charles Miller, head of the Department of Computer Science at the University of California, is among the signers of the President of the United States' call for a moratorium on the use of nuclear weapons. Miller has been a strong advocate of disarmament and has been a vocal critic of the Vietnam War. He has been a member of the editorial board of the journal Science and has been a frequent contributor to other scientific publications.

Miller heads task force

By Larry Kline

Professor Charles Miller, head of the Department of Computer Science at the University of California, has been appointed to a task force by President-elect Richard Nixon to examine the feasibility of a moratorium on the use of nuclear weapons. Miller has been a strong advocate of disarmament and has been a vocal critic of the Vietnam War. He has been a member of the editorial board of the journal Science and has been a frequent contributor to other scientific publications.

Placement Office sees change as Director Harrison resigns

By Charles Mann

Thomas W. Harrington, Jr., has resigned from his position as director of the Placement Office, a task force on transportation. The current director, Professor Charles Miller, will assume the position. Harrington has been a strong advocate of disarmament and has been a vocal critic of the Vietnam War. He has been a member of the editorial board of the journal Science and has been a frequent contributor to other scientific publications.

Harrington's resignation follows the recent resignation of his predecessor, Professor Charles Miller, as head of the Department of Computer Science at the University of California. Miller has been a strong advocate of disarmament and has been a vocal critic of the Vietnam War. He has been a member of the editorial board of the journal Science and has been a frequent contributor to other scientific publications.

Seniors and Graduate Students

Career hunt with 90 of the finest companies having operations located in the New Jersey/New York metropolitan area. On December 20-27 at the Marriott Motor Hotel, intersection of Garden State Parkway and the New Jersey Turnpike. For more details, including a listing of sponsoring companies, see your college placement director or write to the New Jersey section of Career-in "New Jersey".

While the body of the text was generated, the generation of the image was not accurate.