Disrupts business

Grease fire damages Lobdell

A grease fire in the kitchen of Lobdell Dining Room caused over $2,000 damage, and set off alarms throughout the building. The fire, which started in the kitchen range, quickly spread to the ceiling and walls. The situation was exacerbated by a lack of trained personnel to fight the fire. The fire department was called to the scene, and they were able to extinguish the fire before it caused any further damage.

The cause of the fire is under investigation. The university is advising students to be cautious when using grease and oil in the kitchen.

Two join radical conference

By By Laura King

Two Wellesley students have been chosen to attend the prestigious Peace Corps conference in Washington, D.C. The students, who are currently serving as Peace Corps volunteers in the Caribbean, will participate in a panel discussion on the future of the Peace Corps.

Wiesner to co-chair panel for Kennedy ABM probe

By Greg Bernhardt

Senator Edward Kennedy has chosen President John F. Kennedy and Harvard Professor Abram Chayes to lead a committee that will prepare a presidential report on the strategic arms limitation talks. The committee will be chaired by Wiesner and Chayes, and will include scientists, engineers, and political experts.

The committee's task is to assess the strategic arms limitation talks and to recommend a course of action for the United States.

Wellesley student authority grows to Academic Council

By Larry Klein

Wellesley College students have gained a significant role in the college's decision-making process. The student government has been given a seat on the Academic Council, which is responsible for overseeing the college's curriculum and budget.

The student government is pleased with the new arrangement, and hopes it will lead to increased student involvement in the governance of the college.