Mayor Richard Hatch of Gary, Indiana, said that the "crisis" in urban social structure has reached a new, perhaps more acute stage in the last few years, and that new planning is needed.

"We have approached a point where our" planning is needed" where there will be a need for a new kind of planning that will be oriented toward the needs of the people."

"These new planning approaches must be developed in order to meet the needs of the people."

"We need a new kind of planning that is oriented toward the needs of the people."
