"I guess you could say I've tried to be a catalyst for student-faculty relationships," concluded Dean Kenneth R. Wadleigh in summarizing his tenure as Dean of Student Affairs. "In this decade," he remarked, "we've continued the evolution from a highly prescribed, commuting university to a more modern, more liberal residential status." There have been many changes in two areas where he found continued development to be most important: "First, we've continued our efforts to provide non-curricular educational environment; and second, we've recognized the value of student initiative."
