By Jeff Gale

This is why the Jefferson Airplane will often refuse to do "Somebody to Love" and why Janis Joplin only sang "Me and Bobby McGee" and stuck to doing "Foolish行 about a little entertainment theory digression.

There is a big difference between a musician and an entertainer. Usually that difference is intangible but easily recognized. It is usually the musician who excels on record. He is striving for the best possible interpretation, most originality, and other such highly artful goals. The musician is the one who gets bored playing the same thing night after night.
