was stolen from Building 13. Lieutenant James Olivieri of the Campus Patrol had earlier admitted that a large table-load of electronic instruments in his office had been part of what was recovered. He also said, however, that most of the recovered property had already been returned to the laboratories from which it had been taken. Olivieri declined to tell when the information "came unsolicited from a source asking to be unidentified.

Stop reading The Way They Did 100 Years Ago

100 years ago, people read the way you're reading now.

In 1817, a young boy named Henry Wadsworth Longfellow came along and said, "You are reading now."

The story was published in the New York Herald. It sold 100,000 copies in two weeks.

But today, we know the meaning of the story. It is a reminder that we are living in a time of great change and that we must be prepared to face the challenges of the future.

These people have all taken a course developed by Evelyn Wood, a prominent educator. All of them have at least tripled their reading speed with equal or better comprehension. Most have increased even more. Some have increased it 10, even 20 times.

Think for a moment what that means.

All of them—even the slowest—can now read an average novel in ten hours. They can read this ad in 15 seconds. They can read an entire issue of Time in 15 minutes.

They don't skip or skim either. They read every single word. Nor do they use门外汉. Instead, they use the material in their reading determine how fast they read.

And—mark this well—they actually understand more and remember more than when they read like you. That's right. They remember more. They enjoy more.

You can do the same thing—even if you have a relatively slow reading speed. In fact, if you don't have the time to read at reading ability, the course won't cost you a thing.

This is the same course President Ken- nedy had his Joint Chiefs of Staff take. The same one sessions and Congressmen have taken.

It's eight weeks long, 2½ hours a week, with classes held regularly in Boston and suburbs.

Shouldn't you find out more about it? You could, simply by coming to a free one-hour demonstration.

We'll show you a film. Explain the course more fully. Answer any questions you might have.

You'll be under no pressure to enroll. You don't have to do it. But if you come, it could change your life.

Stop reading The Way They Did 100 Years Ago

100 years ago, people read the way you’re reading now.

Word by word. About 300 to 400 words a minute.

And 100 years ago, that kind of reading didn’t cause any problems. You could keep up with what was happening pretty well.

But today, our knowledge is exploding so fast that people who want to keep pace are falling behind. People have taken the course more fully. Answer any questions you might have.
