Another Wilson key to hoop season

By Jay Zager

Back in the days when MIT was a hotbed of basketball games, it had this guy named Wilson who was a star of the powerful six-foot, 300-pound frame to pace the Engineers in both scoring and rebounding.

When he graduated (in June 1967), Coach Jack Barry smiled meekly and wondered where he would find another Wilson. But Wonder wonders no more and when MIT faced Yale in their 1969-70 basketball season this week, the starting center will stand six foot with 300 pounds to answer to the name Wilson.

Wilson played for the Brooklyn College Basketball Team and had a successful career there.

BC depth tops thinskads but frosh triumph 61-42

By Buzz Meylin

On Wednesday night under the lights of Rockefeller Ware, MIT's varsity cinderlens opened their 1969-70 season against the Boston College College. The depth of the B.C. squad, twice the size of MIT's, proved to be too much for Engineers as they succumbed to Eagles, 28-76. However, Coaches Art Farnham and Goedon Kelly were heartened by outstanding collective efforts. In the field events Ray Mayer '72 placed third in the 35-0 yard weight throw with a toss of 190.4, Broadjumper Albert Lau '72 won was- out of second place by a quarter of an inch with a leap of 6-10. Jim Zili '71 was victorious in his specialty, the high jump, with a six foot effort. In the relay events Walt Geaster cleared 126" for first; teammate Jim O'Brien placed second, and Bill Godfrey '71 led the winners with 24 points.

In Division one league action KS upset Burton 49-42 and LCA stopped PGP 44-31. The Engineers were behind for three quarters, but beat Burton with a hot streak in the fourth period.
