The action took place at Wellesley College on Thursday, two alumni were honored. The event lasted about three minutes. Miss Adams was given a copy of the speech, which was delivered by tuition students. The president then addressed the audience and challenged them to follow her example. After consulting with the mailroom, she decided that it was inappropriate to allow a student to speak on this topic at the Convocation.

At 2 p.m. on Convocation day, the Wellesley community gathered for a one-page flyer giving the text of the speech and asking students to support the speech's position by marching around the chapel during the Convocation. Two hundred people died for several minutes, and then entered the chapel.

Barbara Baumberger, Durant Scholar and one of the movement leaders, asked Wellesley President Ruth M. Adams that a sunshine speaker be asked about three minutes at the Convocation. Miss Adams was given a copy of the speech, which was delivered by tuition students. After consulting with the mailroom, she decided that it was inappropriate to allow a student to speak on this topic at the Convocation.

Barbara Baumberger, Durant Scholar and one of the movement leaders, asked Wellesley President Ruth M. Adams that a sunshine speaker be asked about three minutes at the Convocation. Miss Adams was given a copy of the speech, which was delivered by tuition students. After consulting with the mailroom, she decided that it was inappropriate to allow a student to speak on this topic at the Convocation.

KENDALL DRUG CORPORATION
NEW MODERN PHARMACY
238 MAIN STREET, CAMBRIDGE
Right in the heart of MIT
(Near Kendall Post Office)
"CATERING TO YOUR PRESCRIPTION NEEDS"
FULL LINE OF COSMETICS, GIFTS, SUNDRIES
492-7790
Tell them you saw this ad in "The Tech."

Most Life Insurance is a Bargain.

The action took place at Wellesley College on Thursday, two alumni were honored. The event lasted about three minutes. Miss Adams was given a copy of the speech, which was delivered by tuition students. After consulting with the mailroom, she decided that it was inappropriate to allow a student to speak on this topic at the Convocation. Miss Adams was given a copy of the speech, which was delivered by tuition students. After consulting with the mailroom, she decided that it was inappropriate to allow a student to speak on this topic at the Convocation.

Barbara Baumberger, Durant Scholar and one of the movement leaders, asked Wellesley President Ruth M. Adams that a sunshine speaker be asked about three minutes at the Convocation. Miss Adams was given a copy of the speech, which was delivered by tuition students. After consulting with the mailroom, she decided that it was inappropriate to allow a student to speak on this topic at the Convocation.

Barbara Baumberger, Durant Scholar and one of the movement leaders, asked Wellesley President Ruth M. Adams that a sunshine speaker be asked about three minutes at the Convocation. Miss Adams was given a copy of the speech, which was delivered by tuition students. After consulting with the mailroom, she decided that it was inappropriate to allow a student to speak on this topic at the Convocation.

Barbara Baumberger, Durant Scholar and one of the movement leaders, asked Wellesley President Ruth M. Adams that a sunshine speaker be asked about three minutes at the Convocation. Miss Adams was given a copy of the speech, which was delivered by tuition students. After consulting with the mailroom, she decided that it was inappropriate to allow a student to speak on this topic at the Convocation.

Barbara Baumberger, Durant Scholar and one of the movement leaders, asked Wellesley President Ruth M. Adams that a sunshine speaker be asked about three minutes at the Convocation. Miss Adams was given a copy of the speech, which was delivered by tuition students. After consulting with the mailroom, she decided that it was inappropriate to allow a student to speak on this topic at the Convocation.

Barbara Baumberger, Durant Scholar and one of the movement leaders, asked Wellesley President Ruth M. Adams that a sunshine speaker be asked about three minutes at the Convocation. Miss Adams was given a copy of the speech, which was delivered by tuition students. After consulting with the mailroom, she decided that it was inappropriate to allow a student to speak on this topic at the Convocation.

Barbara Baumberger, Durant Scholar and one of the movement leaders, asked Wellesley President Ruth M. Adams that a sunshine speaker be asked about three minutes at the Convocation. Miss Adams was given a copy of the speech, which was delivered by tuition students. After consulting with the mailroom, she decided that it was inappropriate to allow a student to speak on this topic at the Convocation.

Barbara Baumberger, Durant Scholar and one of the movement leaders, asked Wellesley President Ruth M. Adams that a sunshine speaker be asked about three minutes at the Convocation. Miss Adams was given a copy of the speech, which was delivered by tuition students. After consulting with the mailroom, she decided that it was inappropriate to allow a student to speak on this topic at the Convocation.

Barbara Baumberger, Durant Scholar and one of the movement leaders, asked Wellesley President Ruth M. Adams that a sunshine speaker be asked about three minutes at the Convocation. Miss Adams was given a copy of the speech, which was delivered by tuition students. After consulting with the mailroom, she decided that it was inappropriate to allow a student to speak on this topic at the Convocation.

Barbara Baumberger, Durant Scholar and one of the movement leaders, asked Wellesley President Ruth M. Adams that a sunshine speaker be asked about three minutes at the Convocation. Miss Adams was given a copy of the speech, which was delivered by tuition students. After consulting with the mailroom, she decided that it was inappropriate to allow a student to speak on this topic at the Convocation.