These hearings will be effectively closed; even at a least the cases of the eleven students charged in the hearing's purpose really is, and whether suspicions information on such crucial processes; every defend-the proceedings as they happen. Every member of nevertheless of utmost importance that every will not hinder permanently the the injury of others or the des-courage or participated in for their non-involvement in the committee to go to President Nixon's decision to send United forces into Cambodia and the sending of 128 fighter-bombers to strike within North Vietnam must be viewed as Constitutionally question-and extremely ill-advised. By ignoring the stated opinion of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, American forces have been and will be, in the war in Indochina, Nixon has ignored our our system of checks and balances. A constitutional Discipline hearings
Tonight the Discipline Committee begins hearing the cases of the eleven students charged in the January occupation of the President's office. These hearings will be effectively closed; even at a date, Nixon's attempt, members of the community to will be forced to sit in a separate room, where they will hear but not see the proceedings. Each defendant will be present only to testify in his be heard by the audience against him.
We object to hearings being held in this fashion.
While it is certainly true that a fully-public, open hearing could lead to disturbances similar to those which marred the earlier part of this winter, it is indefinitely important that every attempts to keep the community aware of them will necessitate repetitive testimony, and rumors which always surround a contro-Audio portion is at most a poor half-measure, which can only multiply the counter-productive
rumors which always surround a contro-
As for the proceedings themselves, the defen-be present and witness to the effectiveness of We call for another meeting to be held Friday afternoon to discuss the question of ending or We ask all members to discuss this matter with faculty members, encouraging them to vote for a suspension of classes. We do not feel the faculty need address the question of final at this time; rather believe it must rise to need for action on a massive scale now.

Last chance for Senate as Nixon escalates war
By Steve Cathart
The impending debate over the President's intervention in Cambodia and the bombing in North Vietnam represents our last best chance to make the balances which are supposedly in the Constitutional right.
The simple fact of the matter is that Nixon is taken into a country which did not sign any mutual defense treaty with us. The simple fact of the matter is that he is doing it without consulting Congress; inden-et, he took it just after his Secretary of State told him that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is trying to limit word of its prothe Congress has been and will be in its position.

We call on the MIT faculty to meet Wednesday
and demand that the Tech:

Letters to The Tech

The Cambridge Chamber of Commerce wishes to commend the efforts of the campus community toward peaceful involvement during the rally on Wednesday, April 15, and for its efforts to maintain an effective demonstration of ideas and a working platform for discussion.
Speaking for the business community, the Cambridge Chamber also commends the majority of the students for their non-involvement in the destructive actions following the rally.
The actions of a few who encouraged or participated in the injury of others or the destruction of property will not hinder permanently the University Strike

President Nixon's decision to send United
forces into Cambodia and the sending of 128 fighter-bombers to strike within North Vietnam must be viewed as Constitutionally question-
and extremely ill-advised. By ignoring the
stated opinion of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, American forces have been and will be, in the war in Indochina, Nixon has ignored our
our system of checks and balances. A constitutional Discipline hearings
Tonight the Discipline Committee begins hearing the cases of the eleven students charged in the January occupation of the President's office. These
hearings will be effectively closed; even at a date, Nixon's attempt, members of the community to
will be forced to sit in a separate room, where they will hear but not see the proceedings. Each
defendant will be present only to testify in his
be heard by the audience against him.
We object to hearings being held in this fashion.
While it is certainly true that a fully-public, open
hearing could lead to disturbances similar to those
which marred the earlier part of this winter, it is
indefinitely important that every
attempts to keep the community aware of
them will necessitate repetitive testimony, and
rumors which always surround a contro-
Audio portion is at most a poor half-measure,
which can only multiply the counter-productive
rumors which always surround a contro-
As for the proceedings themselves, the defen-
be present and witness to the effectiveness of
We call for another meeting to be held Friday
afternoon to discuss the question of ending or
We ask all members to discuss this matter with
faculty members, encouraging them to vote
for a suspension of classes. We do not feel
the faculty need address the question of final
at this time; rather believe it must rise to
need for action on a massive scale now.

Last chance for Senate as Nixon escalates war
By Steve Cathart
The impending debate over the President's
intervention in Cambodia and the bombing in North Vietnam
represents our last best chance to make the
balances which are supposedly in the
Constitutional right.
The simple fact of the matter is that Nixon is
taken into a country which did not sign any mutual defense treaty
with us. The simple fact of the matter is that he is doing it without consulting Congress; inden-
et, he took it just after his Secretary of State told him that the Senate Foreign Relations
Committee is trying to limit word of its pro-
the Congress has been and will be in its
position.

We call on the MIT faculty to meet Wednesday
and demand that the Tech:

Letters to The Tech

The Cambridge Chamber of Commerce wishes to commend
the efforts of the campus community toward peaceful involvement
during the rally on Wednesday, April 15, and
for its efforts to maintain an effective demonstration of ideas
and a working platform for discussion.
Speaking for the business community, the Cambridge Chamber also commends the majority of the students for their non-involvement in the
destructive actions following the rally.
The actions of a few who
encouraged or participated in
the injury of others or the destruction of property will not hinder permanently the
University Strike

President Nixon's decision to send United
forces into Cambodia and the sending of 128 fighter-bombers to strike within North Vietnam must be viewed as Constitutionally question-
and extremely ill-advised. By ignoring the
stated opinion of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, American forces have been and will be, in the war in Indochina, Nixon has ignored our
our system of checks and balances. A constitutional Discipline hearings
Tonight the Discipline Committee begins hearing the cases of the eleven students charged in the January occupation of the President's office. These
hearings will be effectively closed; even at a
date, Nixon's attempt, members of the community to
will be forced to sit in a separate room, where they will hear but not see the proceedings. Each
defendant will be present only to testify in his
be heard by the audience against him.
We object to hearings being held in this fashion.
While it is certainly true that a fully-public, open
hearing could lead to disturbances similar to those
which marred the earlier part of this winter, it is
indefinitely important that every
attempts to keep the community aware of
them will necessitate repetitive testimony, and
rumors which always surround a contro-
Audio portion is at most a poor half-measure,
which can only multiply the counter-productive
rumors which always surround a contro-
As for the proceedings themselves, the defen-
be present and witness to the effectiveness of
We call for another meeting to be held Friday
afternoon to discuss the question of ending or
We ask all members to discuss this matter with
faculty members, encouraging them to vote
for a suspension of classes. We do not feel
the faculty need address the question of final
at this time; rather believe it must rise to
need for action on a massive scale now.

Last chance for Senate as Nixon escalates war
By Steve Cathart
The impending debate over the President's
intervention in Cambodia and the bombing in North Vietnam
represents our last best chance to make the
balances which are supposedly in the
Constitutional right.
The simple fact of the matter is that Nixon is
taken into a country which did not sign any mutual defense treaty
with us. The simple fact of the matter is that he is doing it without consulting Congress; inden-
et, he took it just after his Secretary of State told him that the Senate Foreign Relations
Committee is trying to limit word of its pro-
the Congress has been and will be in its
position.

We call on the MIT faculty to meet Wednesday
and demand that the Tech:

Letters to The Tech

The Cambridge Chamber of Commerce wishes to commend
the efforts of the campus community toward peaceful involvement
during the rally on Wednesday, April 15, and
for its efforts to maintain an effective demonstration of ideas
and a working platform for discussion.
Speaking for the business community, the Cambridge Chamber also commends the
majority of the students for their non-involvement in the
destructive actions following the rally.
The actions of a few who
encouraged or participated in
the injury of others or the destruction of property will not hinder permanently the
University Strike

President Nixon's decision to send United
forces into Cambodia and the sending of 128 fighter-bombers to strike within North Vietnam must be viewed as Constitutionally question-
and extremely ill-advised. By ignoring the
stated opinion of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, American forces have been and will be, in the war in Indochina, Nixon has ignored our
our system of checks and balances. A constitutional Discipline hearings
Tonight the Discipline Committee begins hearing the cases of the eleven students charged in the January occupation of the President's office. These
hearings will be effectively closed; even at a
date, Nixon's attempt, members of the community to
will be forced to sit in a separate room, where they
will hear but not see the proceedings. Each
defendant will be present only to testify in his
be heard by the audience against him.
We object to hearings being held in this fashion.
While it is certainly true that a fully-public, open
hearing could lead to disturbances similar to those
which marred the earlier part of this winter, it is
indefinitely important that every
attempts to keep the community aware of
them will necessitate repetitive testimony, and
rumors which always surround a contro-
Audio portion is at most a poor half-measure,
which can only multiply the counter-productive
rumors which always surround a contro-
As for the proceedings themselves, the defen-
be present and witness to the effectiveness of
We call for another meeting to be held Friday
afternoon to discuss the question of ending or
We ask all members to discuss this matter with
faculty members, encouraging them to vote
for a suspension of classes. We do not feel
the faculty need address the question of final
at this time; rather believe it must rise to
need for action on a massive scale now. 