Deadline draws nearer for draft status changes

The Selective Service Nation-wide Draft Board has invited 150 Cambridge citizens to meet Saturday afternoon to decide whether the city is going to have a new lottery to determine the order of names on the draft list. The meeting will be held at the Cambridge Housing Authority, 1100 Brattle St., and will begin at 2 p.m.

Over 150 Cambridge citizens met Saturday afternoon to decide whether the city is going to have a new lottery to determine the order of names on the draft list. The meeting will be held at the Cambridge Housing Authority, 1100 Brattle St., and will begin at 2 p.m.

As for land use, the Cambridge Housing Authority will have to determine what kind of new development will be needed to meet the growing housing needs of the city. The meeting, which was attended by many local residents, was called to order by the Cambridge Housing Authority.

The meeting was called to order by the Cambridge Housing Authority, and was attended by many local residents. The minutes of the meeting are available at the Cambridge Housing Authority.

The minutes of the meeting are available at the Cambridge Housing Authority.

Graffiti crucial mode for presidency input

By Jarvis Middleton

Graffiti on the walls of the main corridor are the principle method of student input in the process of selecting a new president. The graffiti represent the voice of the student body.

Members of the CJAC copy photographs of the graffiti that have been submitted by both the student community and the faculty. The letters to the student community are then reviewed by the CJAC.

CJAC is composed of 6 corporation members, 6 faculty members, and 6 students (three undergraduates and three graduates). Each member has an equal voice within the group.

Their job is to select a group of presidencies candidates acceptable to both the University and the Corporation. These names are then recommended to the Corporation, which will pick the president. It is highly unlikely that the president will be someone whom CJAC opposes.

CJAC seems to have the chance of becoming familiar with the institute before completely taking over the job.

City tenants air complaints

The Selective Service National Service Board has invited 150 Cambridge citizens to meet Saturday afternoon to decide whether the city is going to have a new lottery to determine the order of names on the draft list. The meeting will be held at the Cambridge Housing Authority, 1100 Brattle St., and will begin at 2 p.m.

As for land use, the Cambridge Housing Authority will have to determine what kind of new development will be needed to meet the growing housing needs of the city. The meeting, which was attended by many local residents, was called to order by the Cambridge Housing Authority.

The meeting was called to order by the Cambridge Housing Authority, and was attended by many local residents. The minutes of the meeting are available at the Cambridge Housing Authority.

The minutes of the meeting are available at the Cambridge Housing Authority.

Graffiti crucial mode for presidency input

By Jarvis Middleton

Graffiti on the walls of the main corridor are the principle method of student input in the process of selecting a new president. The graffiti represent the voice of the student body.

Members of the CJAC copy photographs of the graffiti that have been submitted by both the student community and the faculty. The letters to the student community are then reviewed by the CJAC.

CJAC is composed of 6 corporation members, 6 faculty members, and 6 students (three undergraduates and three graduates). Each member has an equal voice within the group.

Their job is to select a group of presidencies candidates acceptable to both the University and the Corporation. These names are then recommended to the Corporation, which will pick the president. It is highly unlikely that the president will be someone whom CJAC opposes.

CJAC seems to have the chance of becoming familiar with the institute before completely taking over the job.

City tenants air complaints

The Selective Service National Service Board has invited 150 Cambridge citizens to meet Saturday afternoon to decide whether the city is going to have a new lottery to determine the order of names on the draft list. The meeting will be held at the Cambridge Housing Authority, 1100 Brattle St., and will begin at 2 p.m.

As for land use, the Cambridge Housing Authority will have to determine what kind of new development will be needed to meet the growing housing needs of the city. The meeting, which was attended by many local residents, was called to order by the Cambridge Housing Authority.

The meeting was called to order by the Cambridge Housing Authority, and was attended by many local residents. The minutes of the meeting are available at the Cambridge Housing Authority.

The minutes of the meeting are available at the Cambridge Housing Authority.

Graffiti crucial mode for presidency input

By Jarvis Middleton

Graffiti on the walls of the main corridor are the principle method of student input in the process of selecting a new president. The graffiti represent the voice of the student body.

Members of the CJAC copy photographs of the graffiti that have been submitted by both the student community and the faculty. The letters to the student community are then reviewed by the CJAC.

CJAC is composed of 6 corporation members, 6 faculty members, and 6 students (three undergraduates and three graduates). Each member has an equal voice within the group.

Their job is to select a group of presidencies candidates acceptable to both the University and the Corporation. These names are then recommended to the Corporation, which will pick the president. It is highly unlikely that the president will be someone whom CJAC opposes.

CJAC seems to have the chance of becoming familiar with the institute before completely taking over the job.

City tenants air complaints

The Selective Service National Service Board has invited 150 Cambridge citizens to meet Saturday afternoon to decide whether the city is going to have a new lottery to determine the order of names on the draft list. The meeting will be held at the Cambridge Housing Authority, 1100 Brattle St., and will begin at 2 p.m.

As for land use, the Cambridge Housing Authority will have to determine what kind of new development will be needed to meet the growing housing needs of the city. The meeting, which was attended by many local residents, was called to order by the Cambridge Housing Authority.

The meeting was called to order by the Cambridge Housing Authority, and was attended by many local residents. The minutes of the meeting are available at the Cambridge Housing Authority.

The minutes of the meeting are available at the Cambridge Housing Authority.

Graffiti crucial mode for presidency input

By Jarvis Middleton

Graffiti on the walls of the main corridor are the principle method of student input in the process of selecting a new president. The graffiti represent the voice of the student body.

Members of the CJAC copy photographs of the graffiti that have been submitted by both the student community and the faculty. The letters to the student community are then reviewed by the CJAC.

CJAC is composed of 6 corporation members, 6 faculty members, and 6 students (three undergraduates and three graduates). Each member has an equal voice within the group.

Their job is to select a group of presidencies candidates acceptable to both the University and the Corporation. These names are then recommended to the Corporation, which will pick the president. It is highly unlikely that the president will be someone whom CJAC opposes.

CJAC seems to have the chance of becoming familiar with the institute before completely taking over the job.

City tenants air complaints

The Selective Service National Service Board has invited 150 Cambridge citizens to meet Saturday afternoon to decide whether the city is going to have a new lottery to determine the order of names on the draft list. The meeting will be held at the Cambridge Housing Authority, 1100 Brattle St., and will begin at 2 p.m.

As for land use, the Cambridge Housing Authority will have to determine what kind of new development will be needed to meet the growing housing needs of the city. The meeting, which was attended by many local residents, was called to order by the Cambridge Housing Authority.

The meeting was called to order by the Cambridge Housing Authority, and was attended by many local residents. The minutes of the meeting are available at the Cambridge Housing Authority.

The minutes of the meeting are available at the Cambridge Housing Authority.

Graffiti crucial mode for presidency input

By Jarvis Middleton

Graffiti on the walls of the main corridor are the principle method of student input in the process of selecting a new president. The graffiti represent the voice of the student body.

Members of the CJAC copy photographs of the graffiti that have been submitted by both the student community and the faculty. The letters to the student community are then reviewed by the CJAC.

CJAC is composed of 6 corporation members, 6 faculty members, and 6 students (three undergraduates and three graduates). Each member has an equal voice within the group.

Their job is to select a group of presidencies candidates acceptable to both the University and the Corporation. These names are then recommended to the Corporation, which will pick the president. It is highly unlikely that the president will be someone whom CJAC opposes.

CJAC seems to have the chance of becoming familiar with the institute before completely taking over the job.

City tenants air complaints

The Selective Service National Service Board has invited 150 Cambridge citizens to meet Saturday afternoon to decide whether the city is going to have a new lottery to determine the order of names on the draft list. The meeting will be held at the Cambridge Housing Authority, 1100 Brattle St., and will begin at 2 p.m.

As for land use, the Cambridge Housing Authority will have to determine what kind of new development will be needed to meet the growing housing needs of the city. The meeting, which was attended by many local residents, was called to order by the Cambridge Housing Authority.

The meeting was called to order by the Cambridge Housing Authority, and was attended by many local residents. The minutes of the meeting are available at the Cambridge Housing Authority.

The minutes of the meeting are available at the Cambridge Housing Authority.

Graffiti crucial mode for presidency input

By Jarvis Middleton

Graffiti on the walls of the main corridor are the principle method of student input in the process of selecting a new president. The graffiti represent the voice of the student body.

Members of the CJAC copy photographs of the graffiti that have been submitted by both the student community and the faculty. The letters to the student community are then reviewed by the CJAC.

CJAC is composed of 6 corporation members, 6 faculty members, and 6 students (three undergraduates and three graduates). Each member has an equal voice within the group.

Their job is to select a group of presidencies candidates acceptable to both the University and the Corporation. These names are then recommended to the Corporation, which will pick the president. It is highly unlikely that the president will be someone whom CJAC opposes.

CJAC seems to have the chance of becoming familiar with the institute before completely taking over the job.

City tenants air complaints

The Selective Service National Service Board has invited 150 Cambridge citizens to meet Saturday afternoon to decide whether the city is going to have a new lottery to determine the order of names on the draft list. The meeting will be held at the Cambridge Housing Authority, 1100 Brattle St., and will begin at 2 p.m.

As for land use, the Cambridge Housing Authority will have to determine what kind of new development will be needed to meet the growing housing needs of the city. The meeting, which was attended by many local residents, was called to order by the Cambridge Housing Authority.

The meeting was called to order by the Cambridge Housing Authority, and was attended by many local residents. The minutes of the meeting are available at the Cambridge Housing Authority.

The minutes of the meeting are available at the Cambridge Housing Authority.

Graffiti crucial mode for presidency input

By Jarvis Middleton

Graffiti on the walls of the main corridor are the principle method of student input in the process of selecting a new president. The graffiti represent the voice of the student body.

Members of the CJAC copy photographs of the graffiti that have been submitted by both the student community and the faculty. The letters to the student community are then reviewed by the CJAC.

CJAC is composed of 6 corporation members, 6 faculty members, and 6 students (three undergraduates and three graduates). Each member has an equal voice within the group.

Their job is to select a group of presidencies candidates acceptable to both the University and the Corporation. These names are then recommended to the Corporation, which will pick the president. It is highly unlikely that the president will be someone whom CJAC opposes.

CJAC seems to have the chance of becoming familiar with the institute before completely taking over the job.