UAP Analysis

(Continued from page 4)

anger some alumni, or employees, or faculty, shouldn't we try to deal with that? Johnson angered a lot of alumni, employees, etc. by not calling in police to bust the occupation of his office, but he paid that cost because the cost of a bust would have been higher. It seems an absurd invitation to violence to have to invoke "higher cost if you don't let us have it" to get a gay mixer.

There must be a better way out. If it's to the Administration's advantage to keep denying the request, and if the Administration knows it, then let that administration be known. It's the administration who we should hold accountable, not the students. It's the administration who should be held responsible for student concerns and problems.

The new MIT student directors are: Joseph Angland '71, James Monk G, James Ziegen-meyer, and John Newkirk '71, who had petitioned for a place on the ballot. Both Angland and Ziegenmeyer were members of the Coop's financial problems. A discussion of dissatisfaction among members concerning this year's unusually low rebate, only 9% of the previous year's figures, was the result of the loss of 18,000 ballots. Which were cast out of a total mailing of infinite slobs who are running for UMOC; Novembretes for the several years preceding.

Angland added that the economic "downwater" hit students hardest and resulted in,
"ripping off" by students beginning more common. Losses were up, he noted, in most stores with large student trade volumes.

According to the general manager's office, 3,459 votes
were cast out of a total mailing of 18,000 ballots.

Also contacted, Ziegenmeyer felt that "what should be done is already in progress" to alleviate the Coop's financial problems.
A new general manager, formerly a vice-president of Jordan Marsh, was hired this year with a specific mandate to cut losses. Not all the losses, Ziegenmeyer noted, were from shoplifting; both employee theft and accounting erors compounded the problem.

---

4 students win Coop posts

By Lee Giguere

Four MIT students won posts on the Coop Board of Directors in this year's elections, along with seven student directors from Harvard.

In spite of dissatisfaction
among members concerning this
year's unusually low rebate,
only 9% of the previous year's
figures, was the result of the
loss of 18,000 ballots. Which
were cast out of a total mailing
of infinite slobs who are running for UMOC; Novem-

On the Coop Board of Directors
were: Christ Church; Robert Fencher; Robert Freeman; oboe, and Gregory Tucker, husky. Tuesday, November 24, at 8 pm in Kresge Little Theater.

Applications for the New York City Urban Fellowship Program for the academic year 1971-1972 are available in department headquarters. For information contact your department headquarters or Dr.
Les Memard, room 35-271, x7325. Application deadline is

If you are interested in attending an MIT college or university under the Domestic Year Away program, contact Dean Hazen, room 10-303, x243.