(Continued from page 1) addressed a major problem, "We know that there are problems to be solved, but we need ideas and recommendations on how to deal with them. We must establish a communication link between us and the students." The discussion closed with the establishment of the task force; the motion to do so passed unanimously.

Earlier in the meeting, a motion passed to enlarge the Executive Committee of the GA to eight members. Elected as additional members to the five were Larry Dagste, Bob Longman, Arthur Raves, Tony Shields, and Derrick Vladi. After the meeting all five met with Schulte and UAIP John Keyr- wicky to discuss the role of the Executive Committee during the revamping of the GA. It was decided that Execom members would act as overseer of the process. Schulte stated that he intends for each Execom member to represent the GA and the student body: he hopes to have 'eight little UAP's instead of just one.'

Other business of the meeting were reports by students sitting on student-faculty committees. Students were reminded that the Nominations Committee will be seeking a large number of replacements for these committees for next year. In another manpower, the meeting adjourned, the next meeting to be called in three weeks.

Interest in Commission sags

The CEP itself has spent a lot of ground. "The SCEP subcommittee expressed a similar sentiment - Orchard summed up the group's consensus, "the report didn't say anything." Corporation actions on the report, predicted Fuller, is unlikely until the campus generates specific proposals. It would be "premature," he pointed out, for the Corporation to begin formal consideration before the presentation of a student and faculty assessment.

Visiting committees

Several Corporation visiting committees, though, may be getting more use out of the report. Fulser explained that several of these groups have touched on aspects of the report. Jeptha Wade, who sits on the Humanities Visiting Committee, noted that he considered at great length the document's comments on the role of Humanities. As a last-minute act, reported that within the School of Science there is currently a question of potential improvements for the upperclass years though "it's hard to say how much of this is the normal course of events, and how much is due to the Commission."
