Tech mariners score three-regatta sweep

By Randy Young

MIT’s varsity men’s, women’s and freshman teams pulled off a fantastic three-regatta sweep this past weekend, as they won the Friis Trophy, the New England women’s regatta and the New England intradivisional championships, capturing their third straight title. The regatta was sailed at MIT on Saturday and Sunday, as the traditional intradivisionalLiberty Cup sailed handily over a ten-school field.

Kathy Jones ‘71, with Lynn Bischoff ‘72 as her coxswain, pulled out the lead from the start and held it for most of the race. By-the-low-point scoring system meant that she had to beat every boat from the other schools. In the last A-division, about which they were and has-been ball players) that the Benchies (president, a personal best in winning the 1500 meters, and held off until the final strokes of the race.
