Second-guessing (Continued from preceding page) In other words, I am bringing up the necessary improvements in our writing that are appropriate in MIT's speech. Not only do I consider the value of the Institution ("You are the sum of your experiences. Your mean SAT scores.") It is the concept of a "you" that the trend is against. The identity of each individual renders the average citizen incapable of remembering his past. A fully technologized society renders the average citizen increasingly less able to comprehend and experience the special symbols of their concern and integrity. The greater the objectivity of the individual, the greater his sensitivity to the dangers arising from the careless exploitation of new technology.

Two years ago, during his address as appointed President, by the great concern that the nuclear test-ban treaty should be one of style. Wiesner's new door is designed to emphasize MIT's intellectual breadth and distinction, and to its record in public service. The seminars of this inaugural week have reaffirmed the uncertain mood of the times in which we live and have highlighted the necessity for re-emphasizing the essential value of research. No equation can divine the quality of life. Our burden is that we must strive to maintain a balance between the increasing complexity of society and its capability to control the individual. And the only loyalty test will be the achievement of material progress through science and technology, cannot provide a life of dignity for the individual.

The many individual objections to the performance of universities are given coherence, and are amplified by the presence of any structure and goals of a society which stresses the acceleration of material progress through science and technology. We will see more educational experimentation, some implementation of Community service, and to its record in public service. The seminars of this inaugural week have reaffirmed the uncertain mood of the times in which we live and have highlighted the necessity for re-emphasizing the essential value of research. No equation can divine the quality of life. Our burden is that we must strive to maintain a balance between the increasing complexity of society and its capability to control the individual. And the only loyalty test will be the achievement of material progress through science and technology, cannot provide a life of dignity for the individual.

The many individual objections to the performance of universities are given coherence, and are amplified by the presence of any structure and goals of a society which stresses the acceleration of material progress through science and technology. We will see more educational experimentation, some implementation of Community service, and to its record in public service. The seminars of this inaugural week have reaffirmed the uncertain mood of the times in which we live and have highlighted the necessity for re-emphasizing the essential value of research. No equation can divine the quality of life. Our burden is that we must strive to maintain a balance between the increasing complexity of society and its capability to control the individual. And the only loyalty test will be the achievement of material progress through science and technology, cannot provide a life of dignity for the individual.

The many individual objections to the performance of universities are given coherence, and are amplified by the presence of any structure and goals of a society which stresses the acceleration of material progress through science and technology. We will see more educational experimentation, some implementation of Community service, and to its record in public service. The seminars of this inaugural week have reaffirmed the uncertain mood of the times in which we live and have highlighted the necessity for re-emphasizing the essential value of research. No equation can divine the quality of life. Our burden is that we must strive to maintain a balance between the increasing complexity of society and its capability to control the individual. And the only loyalty test will be the achievement of material progress through science and technology, cannot provide a life of dignity for the individual.

The many individual objections to the performance of universities are given coherence, and are amplified by the presence of any structure and goals of a society which stresses the acceleration of material progress through science and technology. We will see more educational experimentation, some implementation of Community service, and to its record in public service. The seminars of this inaugural week have reaffirmed the uncertain mood of the times in which we live and have highlighted the necessity for re-emphasizing the essential value of research. No equation can divine the quality of life. Our burden is that we must strive to maintain a balance between the increasing complexity of society and its capability to control the individual. And the only loyalty test will be the achievement of material progress through science and technology, cannot provide a life of dignity for the individual.