At last count there were eight (count 'em, eight) candidates, of varying degrees of enthusiasm for the Democratic Presidential nomination. To wit, Senator Harris, Humphrey, Jackson, McGovern, Muskie, Sen. Fred Harris, Representatives Farley and McGovern, and Mayor Lindsay have been traveling across the country obtaining pledges of support for the primary elections and the Convention. In addition, former Sen. Eugene McCarthy (D-Minn.) and Rep. McCloskey are drawing money from some of the same liberal Democratic money sources.

If a significant number of the above politicians make a serious run for the nomination, the Democratic Party will be extremely short of cash after the Convention. The Republican National Committee, even if it was not interested in the nation's newspaper, will still be too early to tell for sure, but if it has come to the conclusion that the expansion of the new Nixonomics, it is highly likely that Spiro Agnew will win the nomination. The candidate of the Democratic Party, PTA (a position Agnew held in the early 60's)

In all probability, candidates will start to drop out as they perceive that they have neither the financial nor political support to wrest the coveted prize from their opponents. Harris and McGovern appear to be the only candidates for the foreseeable future. Harris, by the way, favorably impressed Massachusetts Demo- crats with his performance in the New Hampshire primary. At the time he was leading most polls in the state, he was losing money even as many of Muskie's money sources. With so many liberal Democrats in the party, it would seem logical for the left wing of the Democratic Party to unite behind one candidate. Such a move is impractical because these men are all too human and are willing to risk withdrawal from the contest for another candidate. At a recent meeting between Lindsay and McGovern, McGov- ern asked Lindsay for his support, but the latter told him to set up his own campaign.

The feeling in some quarters is that Muskie will win the New Hampshire primary and must be stopped. In Massachusetts primary if he is to deny the nomination. The man to him in the minds of some polls, is Lindsay. The current prognosis is favorable to winning enough delegate strength in primaries to win the nomination and for deadlock, if in the Massachusetts pri- mary. There are a number of reasons as to why will happen if the Convention should deadlock. The most important:

Riding a white charger as he emerges from the presidential smoke-filled halls, the last survivor of a political dynasty, and the struggle for the 1972 Democratic Presidential nomination, will get to the phone company cannot be written course the first year than he-probabl' Others must pay a $15 registration feet

Guides adapted from those tried by the others. In the second year the Keller Plan course takes instructor time than conventional cur- se. By large, instructors who used the Keller Plan course are enthusiastic about the program. One proof of student enthusiasm is the 75 to 50 percent of those who graduate from a Keller Plan course choose the Keller Plan option for a later course if it is available. Conference sessions will be all day tomorrow and Sunday. An introduction to the Keller Plan course will be given at the Keller Plan information meeting on Saturday, February 9, at 11:30 a.m. at the Conference Center.

MIT students may register free for the entire program from 8:30 to 1 p.m. on Saturday. Conference and social events will begin at 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

It can be concluded that the Keller Plan spread so rapidly that the normal pace of journal article publication is impossible. In order to prevent ineffective and ineffective, unnecessary use of time and materials, the Keller Plan will be given on the Keller Plan this Saturday and Sunday.

In this conference the instructor who writes his own student guide spends much more time than usual in the preparation of his guide. The Keller Plan guide must be structured, it must be specific, it must be an example of the material. We expect to reduce this time by making use of study guides adapted from those tried by the others. In the second year the Keller Plan course takes instructor time than conventional cur-