Gaggle cops Tech Board

The leadership of The Tech has passed on to a new gaggle of editors, elected in a three-and-a-half hour, smoke-filled meeting in the newspaper's sagging Student Center inner office last Saturday. The marathon session was notable for a lack of the political infighting that had characterized certain more violent contests in the past.

Elected to the new board of editors, which will guide the collegiate tabloid through the year beginning February were (pictured, left), Robert Elkin '73, Chairman; Lee Gigere '73, Managing Editor; Leonard Tower (irregular), Business Manager; Paul "Wunderkind" Schnieder '74 and Walter Middlebrook '74, News Editors; Tim Klippe '72 and William Roberts '72, Night Editors; Bradley Billettdeaux '73, Sports Editor; David Searls '73, Arts Editor; Sheldon Lowenthal '74 and David Tenenbaum '74, Photography Editors; Alex Makowski '72, Advertising Manager; and Joseph, Kashi '72 and Michael Feiring '72, Contributing Editors.

All ran unopposed, and most contests were without interest except for some sporadic, gratuitous sniping. Only those nominees who were not present could not be elected, under an obscure provision in the newspaper's constitution.
