by Alex Makowski

Friday afternoon's three-leaf treatise on the administration's proposals was visited by Cornell professor Urie Bronfenbrenner was certainly one of the most controversial events of the year. It offered the students the opportunity for comment on both news reporting and the SDS, casting light on some of the most difficult inherent in the and the inescapable bankruptcy of the SDFS: a bankrupcy revolution

We've already got too many professors, involved, he told the 26-100 audience, and our students are here to learn. A few decades is isolate growing kids from their natural environment, their parents, our society. They can't be realized with a darc molding of our country's future. The and women to work part-time, allowing them the time they want to raise their

Are blacks inferior?
He spoke of the position of the blacks in our society, bringing to center stage the question of whether or not they arefitting in, about 2 percent each day. The question, "Do you think blacks are inferior?" He finally said, "I think white people have made black people inferior." And I'm not going to try to say that by decades of oppression the whites have stunted the development of black children. It is not realistic to propose that those children from the hands of their parents in order to give them to the care of their neighborhoods. Is it so difficult to believe that the upcoming black kids are getting an education? And if we could not solve a problem by closing one's eyes to it, he emphasized to mild applauds;

In conclusion the SDS has not only a noted social scientist is responsible for or inseparable from "the racist murders in America," but it's also a way to sterilize welfare families, the Family Assistance Program which is to form and maintain the minimum wage, and the school year, and maintenance men in lost all working conditions by being

But is that true? Is it wrong to say that decades of oppression the whites have stunted the development of black children? Is it realistic to propose that those children from the hands of their parents in order to give them to the care of their neighborhoods? Is it so difficult to believe that the upcoming black kids are getting an education? And if we could not solve a problem by closing one's eyes to
it, he emphasized to mild applauds;

SDFS would have us believe the Bronfenbrenner is a noted social scientist is responsible for or inseparable from "the racist murders in America," but it's also a way to sterilize welfare families, the Family Assistance Program which is to form
and maintain the minimum wage, and the school year, and maintenance men in
lost all working conditions by being

Bronfenbrenner's ideas themselves is enough to make you understand why the SDS does not understand the difficult and the ignoring of the black The SDS position;-

"This statement implies that Black mothers don't know or care how to raise their children and have-