NSF to fund pre-law jobs

By Peter Preckzak
Milwaukee, Wis. The Voters of Wisconsin will have the unprecedented numbers for the Presidential primary balloting this year.

Already, past records for the number of candidates who have cast have been broken. In many areas of the state, more absentee ballots were cast on first day of voting than was ever been cast in previous elections.

The race has occupied the attention of the entire state for the second week since the Florida primaries.

On Easter Sunday, Secretary Hubert Humphrey and Edmund Muskie will appear in Milwaukee, Wis. The voters of Wisconsin will have the opportunity to vote for their favorite candidate in the primary election.

The relative organizational strength of the candidates may prove to be the deciding factor in the campaign. By far, the most effective is Muskie, who has a strong base in the state. His campaign is well-financed and well-organized.

In addition to the above candidates who have campaigned in the state, the names of Representative Shirley Chisholm, Representative Patricia Schroeder, and Senator Barry Goldwater will appear on the ballot. These candidates are expected to draw little, if any, popular support.

McGovern's organization demonstrated its skill by arranging for shuttle buses to take University of Wisconsin students to cast absentee ballots before they leave for vacation. It is expected that a large percentage of these votes will go for McGovern.

In the Republican primary, Senators John Tower and Paul McCloskey will appear on the ballot along with President Nixon. Nixon is expected to draw little, if any, support.

The relative organizational strength of the candidates may prove to be the deciding factor in the campaign. By far, the most effective is Muskie, who has a strong base in the state. His campaign is well-financed and well-organized.

In addition to the above candidates who have campaigned in the state, the names of Representative Shirley Chisholm, Representative Patricia Schroeder, and Senator Barry Goldwater will appear on the ballot. These candidates are expected to draw little, if any, popular support.

McGovern's organization demonstrated its skill by arranging for shuttle buses to take University of Wisconsin students to cast absentee ballots before they leave for vacation. It is expected that a large percentage of these votes will go for McGovern.

In the Republican primary, Senators John Tower and Paul McCloskey will appear on the ballot along with President Nixon. Nixon is expected to draw little, if any, support.