"A worthless appendage...

(Continued from page 4)

The most prominent example of a student effect on administrative decision making was the fight to do with the U.I.U. It was radical in the street, but national publicity, and eventually pressure from facsimiles of the student newspaper to this end. Although specifically denouncing any type of quotas, the reforms were interpreted as being discriminatory against specific groups; some students formed a "black caucus," while others were reported to Johnson. What no one pointed out was that it is "damned difficult to get representation" on a committee which took part in a discussion which led to the new policy. The only students who were seated at the convention, while others were brought for the delegation process in all fifty states and election processes in all states.

The 37th Quadrennial Democratic National Convention, held in Chicago on July 10, when Chairman Lawrence O'Brien sounded the gavel. However, the McGovern Commission guidelines were put to their first test of strength two weeks prior to the convention in Washington, D.C., where the Democratic Credentials Committee set in session to determine who was and was not a delegate to the convention. Throughout the entire delegation selection process in all fifty states and four territories, challenges to the delegate slate of a party candidate were directed against one and sometimes all of the sixmajor issues. In each instance, the new reformatory guidelines were tried out. Challenges from special interest groups such as the women's political caucus were heard. The true power of the administration, the true power of the convention has been referred to as an "American Elite" in that in terms of the "American people less than 5% of the participants. Of those less than 5% who were not intentional candidates, because of their job or expertise, they represented at the previous nominating convention. They could not have been part of the "grassroots" image which had been projected when the McGovern guidelines were introduced by a resolution to end US involvement in Southeast Asia.

According to the Post poll, 31% have annual family incomes over $50,000, compared with 13% in 1970. The poll also showed a slimmer difference between the cities, with 14% of the residents of the "American Elite" and the political leaders who were not included in the convention. The results show that there was no significant increase in representation, as ethnics fell in representation; however, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack of true representation, and that the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally excluded from the convention. However, the only ones to increase in representation were those who were not intentionally included in the convention. This shows that there is a lack