The charge against the accused is a "beer spill" which, according to the report of the Disciplinary Committee investigating ROTC hearings held at Tech. In a letter to the editor, R. W. Wadleigh pronounced a "false and spurious" statement. Mr. Wadleigh, as a member of the Committee, should not be privy to its deliberations and thus cannot make an informed statement about the case. The charge, therefore, is inadmissible in evidence against the accused.

The charge against the accused is a "beer spill" which, according to the report of the Disciplinary Committee investigating ROTC hearings held at Tech. In a letter to the editor, R. W. Wadleigh pronounced a "false and spurious" statement. Mr. Wadleigh, as a member of the Committee, should not be privy to its deliberations and thus cannot make an informed statement about the case. The charge, therefore, is inadmissible in evidence against the accused.

The charge against the accused is a "beer spill" which, according to the report of the Disciplinary Committee investigating ROTC hearings held at Tech. In a letter to the editor, R. W. Wadleigh pronounced a "false and spurious" statement. Mr. Wadleigh, as a member of the Committee, should not be privy to its deliberations and thus cannot make an informed statement about the case. The charge, therefore, is inadmissible in evidence against the accused.