Middletown faces race issues

(Continued from page 1)

but it will work." In particular, rate interview, E. Gary Woods was leery that the "worked fine." He emphasized that the heart of the section doesn't "form up to 50% of the section in interviews." Of the section, explained that part of literature - any MIT student can participate. O'Neill added that this is an attempt to "neither poof nor disprove. It has been the biggest construction fiasco in state history." - and this is no exaggeration.

Due to tremendous overcrowding in the coal system, a new building had to be built. As a scientist, teacher, and engineer, you have a significant influence in the field of atomic energy and its applications to society, and I hope you will accept this honor as a token of your country's admiration for all these distinguished accomplishments."

Benedict will be the seventeenth recipient of the award, which consists of a citation and a gold medal in addition to the $25,000 prize. It is named in honor of the late Enrico Fermi, a pioneer in nuclear physics and the leader of the group of scientists who achieved the first controlled nuclear chain reaction on December 2, 1942, at the University of Chicago.

By Lee Giguere

Students have been "invited to participate. O'Neill explained that there is a feeling among the faculty that "the section doesn't seem to have any literature majors." The committee grew out of efforts made last spring on the part of the literature section for a voice in faculty hiring. At that time, a number of students joined the literature section in interviewing applicants. Afterwards, they were allowed to participate in the section's discussion of the applicants.

Woody Falden, one of the students involved in the section, emphasized that "the faculty is nearly unanimous." O'Neill explained that there was no student vote in the selection of "a significant minority" of the faculty didn't want it. The final decision, he stated, represents a "common ground." Woody explained that there are a few more remain to be done. "Actually we're only asking for the same rights as the junior faculty," he emphasized. He emphasized that the power still lies in the hands of the committee.

The committee representatives will be chosen at a student meeting on Thursday, November 9, at 4:45 in 14E-304.

ABORTION

PREGNANCY TEST AVAILABLE

An Abortion can be arranged within 24 hours

You return home the same day you leave.

CALL COLLECT:

215 - 735-8100

Abortion is legal in Pennsylvania. Do not let the schedule below fill a routine and then some.

Pennsylvania State Government was to cost $16 million and be completed by 1966. The complex, however, will probably be the only part of the program's future. It will have been called, "the biggest construction fiasco in state history." - and this is no exaggeration.

The architect was finally chosen in 1962. Edward Tedesco was chosen without a search by the Commissioners. When, by, and had no skin of the field. Tedesco had never designed a large high-rise before - his league was small school building. The construction was done by the Geyron Construction Company - a small firm working out of Mamaroneck, NY. This firm is run by George Unger. The problems started with the Donoghue Foundation, but they also laid the foundation pile work. They did a very inadequate job. Litigation on this was started almost immediately.

Finally, in the spring of 1971, Representative Charles Plaguer of Cambridge hired a New York firm that estimated an additional $17 million and two years would be needed to complete the project. The legislation authorizing the money did not pass until January 1972. It calls for the Durkee Construction Company of Providence, Rhode Island to complete the job by July, 1973. This is nearly ten years after the first authorized funding. The future of the court house is fairly good, although it has since been plagued by such things as a two month elevator strike this summer.

Section grants student role

The school's alumnae fund, says Mattie O'Neil explained that there was no student vote in the selection of "a significant minority" of the faculty didn't want it. The final decision, he stated, represents a "common ground." Woody explained that there are a few more remain to be done. "Actually we're only asking for the same rights as the junior faculty," he emphasized. He emphasized that the power still lies in the hands of the committee.

The committee representatives will be chosen at a student meeting on Thursday, November 9, at 4:45 in 14E-304.

TRAVEL YOUTH-FARE WITH HERITAGE!

"THAT WON'T HAPPEN!

Plan your holiday and vacation travel now, at Heritage's branch travel office in Kendall Square.

We are up to date on youth fares: Both Domestic and International.

Ski tours and cruise offerings available.

Heritage's branch office represents all airlines, and will suggest the best flight for your needs.

You may purchase your youth fare tickets from us and save 'time at the airport.

Heritage is just one block from the Sloan campus, in Kendall Square. Call or visit our office; we're open from 8:30am until 5:30pm Monday through Friday, and from 9:00am until 1:00pm on Saturday.

SEE HERITAGE TRAVEL FOR ALL YOUR TRAVEL NEEDS

354-6165

Larry's Barber Shop

"for that well-groomed look"

545 Tech Square

Serving Technicians for over 35 years interested in

JEWISH COMMUNAL SERVICE?

Graduate Scholarships Available

Interviews will be held for college seniors interested in a unique combination of study at graduate schools of social work and college Jewish studies leading to a professional position at the executive level in the field of Jewish Communal Service. Scholarships grants consist of tuition and a stipend for living expenses for those who qualify. (At least a 3.0 cumulative index is required of applicants.)

For further information and applications call

Combined Jewish

Philanthropies of Greater Boston

Orders are mailed within 48 hours of receipt

A. Alexander Co.
96 Riverside Drive, New York, NY

FLETCH HOLIDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1972 PAGE 7

of $76 million. Though there is potential damage and delay, and this is no exaggeration. Tedesco had never designed a large high-rise before - his league was small school building. The construction was done by the Geyron Construction Company - a small firm working out of Mamaroneck, NY. This firm is run by George Unger. The problems started with the Donoghue Foundation, but they also laid the foundation pile work. They did a very inadequate job. Litigation on this was started almost immediately.

Finally, in the spring of 1971, Representative Charles Plaguer of Cambridge hired a New York firm that estimated an additional $17 million and two years would be needed to complete the project. The legislation authorizing the money did not pass until January 1972. It calls for the Durkee Construction Company of Providence, Rhode Island to complete the job by July, 1973. This is nearly ten years after the first authorized funding. The future of the court house is fairly good, although it has since been plagued by such things as a two month elevator strike this summer.

Eenic wins prize: 1972 Fermi award

(Continued from page 1)

O'Neill pointed out that "the committee membership of the committees is the section." One of the important areas the committee was to address was the whole idea of the entire section being considered as a group. O'Neill stated that there were students who were "excited about the possibility of joining the literature section, but they didn't have the written work, back- ground, and interest to meet a requirement. Finally, he noted that they will be able to attend the section meeting and have an input to the decision.

Gary Woods, one of the students involved in the section, said that increased participation, said the committee shouldn't be as good as it was expected. "The failure of student involvement in the section," Woods said, "has been a demonstration process that it will work." In particular, Woods was leery that the "leadership" positions among the students would be sufficient in the future. Significantly, participation is not limited solely to students in literature - any MIT student can participate. O'Neill explained that there is a feeling among the faculty that "the section doesn't seem to have any literature majors." The committee grew out of efforts made last spring on the part of the literature section for a voice in faculty hiring. At that time, a number of students joined the literature section in interviewing applicants. Afterwards, they were allowed to participate in the section's discussion of the applicants.

Woody Falden, one of the students involved in the section, emphasized that "the faculty is nearly unanimous." O'Neill explained that there was no student vote in the selection of "a significant minority" of the faculty didn't want it. The final decision, he stated, represents a "common ground." Woody explained that there are a few more remain to be done. "Actually we're only asking for the same rights as the junior faculty," he emphasized. He emphasized that the power still lies in the hands of the committee.

The committee representatives will be chosen at a student meeting on Thursday, November 9, at 4:45 in 14E-304.