Sports of MIT? You'd better believe it!

By Fred Hutchison

You've just arrived on campus, and there is a whole world of opportunities waiting for you. Sports at MIT can be a great way to meet new people, relax, and have fun. Whether you're interested in varsity sports or intramural activities, there's something for everyone.

Soccer, squash, swimming, tennis, indoor track, outdoor track, polo and wrestling, and more! There are many clubs where you can participate in these activities. The MIT Soccer and Field Hockey teams are very strong, and you can join the squash team or try out for the tennis teams as well.

Basketball and volleyball are popular intramural sports, and there are also opportunities for softball and ultimate frisbee. The MIT swimming and water polo teams are also very strong. If you're interested in track and field, you can participate in the outdoor or indoor track programs.

Intramural sports are a great way to get involved on campus and make new friends. There are also opportunities for varsity sports, including baseball, football, and lacrosse. If you're interested in joining a varsity team, you should contact the appropriate coach or team manager. The coaching staff is always willing to help new students get involved.

In conclusion, sports at MIT offer a wide range of opportunities for students to stay active, meet new people, and have fun. Whether you're interested in varsity sports or intramural activities, there's something for everyone.
