That the Agency shall have no police, subpoena, law enforcement, or military power or responsibility, and That the Director of Central Intelligence be responsible for directing the intelligence activities of the Government through such intermediary agencies as are authorized by law; and

The CIA, according to former agent Sandy Yulke, "is a service organization for the intelligence community and certainly to the Chief Executive...."

The CIA was responsible for gathering overagencies such as CIA, FBI, and NSA, which led to some very interesting findings, strongly suggesting that a number of the President's aides were always taken to be orders from the CIA. Aides were always taken to be orders from the White House to use the CIA to cover up involvement in the Watergate break-in.

Following the June 17, 1972, aborted burglary at the Democratic National Committee headquarters at 2600 16th St. NW, a House and Senate committee investigating government agencies and the intelligence community identified the CIA in Mexico to help the Nixon campaign.

The possibility was raised by Haldeman, who at the same point time pointed out that the requests were based on the fact that the CIA was exploiting the Watergate affair as a campaign ploy. He also pointed out that the State Department had contacted the Mexican government, and Haldeman stated that the State Department had only been using the CIA for espionage interests.

Frame-up inquiry

The Michael Ehrlichman told Cushman that Hunt had been hired by the White House, and would be in the office in the future. At the request of the Senate, Ehrlichman, a House aide, was taken to be orders from the White House. Nixon aides were always taken to be orders from the White House, and was the time was when Hunt's meeting with Cushman took place on July 7, 1971, when Nixon aide John D. Ehrlichman telephoned a telephone number in Cambridge, Mass., where the White House is located. Ehrlichman told the Senate that Cushman had been given one of the most crucial, if not the most crucial elections ever for the city. Last summer, The Paper's Paul Sollman was telling his readers that the city, which was a waste of time to vote, this month, he screamed at them to register and vote, "The elections are over, it's time for apathetic screwing around."

Especially for new voters, this November election can be confusing. There are more candidates than you can count, running for the nine City Council and six School Committee seats. It matters more, Cambridge votes "by the number." Do you know your government structure? Do you know what's going on in the city? Do you want to contribute? Do you want to make your voice heard?

The Cambridge Chronicle is a weekly publication that provides news and information about the Cambridge community. The Chronicle covers local events, politics, education, and culture, and is committed to providing accurate and timely coverage of issues that affect the city.

The Chronicle is published every Thursday and distributed free of charge to homes and businesses throughout Cambridge. The Chronicle is available online at cambridgechronicle.com.

The Chronicle welcomes contributions from readers, particularly those who are interested in writing about local events or issues. Contributions should be submitted via email to editor@cambridgechronicle.com.